PREFACE.

It was while I was in college — 1842-1846 — and I think in 1843, that I first began to think seriously of attempting to compile a Kingsbury genealogy. I had a few names, obtained from my grandfather, Judge John Kingsbury, but they were mostly without dates. I entered into a correspondence with Russell G. Talcott, of Hartford, the father of Miss Mary K. Talcott, editor of this volume, and we exchanged lists of names and added a few. Mr. Talcott was a grandson of Hon. Andrew Kingsbury, No. 845, in this book, and was at that time residing with his grandmother in Hartford. I also had some correspondence with Miss Harriet N. Kingsbury, of Francestown, N. H., but I found that she belonged to the Dedham branch.

After a while I got Mr. J. W. Dean's brief article, in Vol. X of the Genealogical Register, and I obtained some names and dates from my father's cousin, Col. T. H. C. Kingsbury, and from my second cousin, the Countess de Giverville, who was very much interested in the work and had considerable correspondence with various persons of the name.

All this work was desultory and with long interruptions. My first very decided assistance was obtained when the Rev. Lavius Hyde, then of Andover, Conn., sent me his compilations, which were far beyond anything I had yet seen, and contained several hundred names. The possession of this stimulated me to take up the work afresh, and I pursued it with such leisure as I could command until I had collected about eight hundred names. I then became convinced that I should never find time to complete the work, and I turned over my material to Miss Talcott, who is an experienced genealogist as well as a Kingsbury by descent. She has now been at work on it a good many years. I have from time to time contributed such things as fell in my way, but have taken no very active part in the work.

The Rev. Dr. Addison Kingsbury, of Putnam, Ohio, made quite extensive collections. We corresponded and exchanged lists, and he visited me twice so that we might more conveniently compare notes.

His son, Mr. J. A. Kingsbury of Pittsburg, Penn., getting impatient at the long delay, or what seemed such, of our work, printed a small edition of his father's papers with some additions of his own, in quite an elegant volume, which he calls "The Pendulous Book." I am sorry on the whole that he did this, and tried in vain to dissuade him. His father evidently had not intended to print his papers, as the earliest part of the work contains serious errors which I am almost sure Dr. Kingsbury had the material to correct in his possession and would have corrected before printing. The time of publication comes so near that of this book, and so much of the material is necessarily the same, that it is a pity to call on the members of the family to purchase two books covering so much of the same ground. However, Mr. J. A. Kingsbury has added an account of rather recent Irish settlers in Ohio of the name, which otherwise we should not have had.

I have said these few words not with the idea of finding any fault, but rather for the sake of apologizing to the members of the family that two books should be put out so nearly at the same time.

In the course of inquiry we have obtained a good deal of information relative to the Dedham branch, or the descendants of Joseph Kingsbury, who with his brother John were among the first settlers of that town. Miss Mabel Hope Kingsbury, of Braintree, Mass., is compiling a genealogy of Joseph's descendants, and material relating to them has been passed over to her.

Mr. Hyde gives Jonathan Kingsbury, Batavia, N. Y., as son of Jonathan of Hampton, Conn. Inquiry elicited the fact that Jonathan Kingsbury (a lawyer, I think), died at Barre, formerly a part of Batavia, about 1825. His widow, Sophia, married Calvin Field in 1826. It was thought that Jonathan had a brother, Hiram, but it was not known where they came from. They were not of the Hampton family, and I do not know how Dr. Hyde heard of them.

The Maryland family I got trace of from a little book of travels by Thomas Twining, an intelligent Englishman who came here about 1800, and who, in his journeyings from Philadelphia to Baltimore, speaks of "Kingsbury" or "Kingsbury's" as a stopping-place. I found a record of large land holdings for several generations, but the name seems now to have disappeared. They appear to have come from England to Maryland in the 17th century.

In investigating the family history the Kingsburys appear to have been an eminently respectable people, occupying a prominent and often a leading place in the communities where they dwelt: conservative, of sound sense and judgment, and having a keen sense of humor; peacemakers and peace lovers; not litigious, preferring rather to suffer wrong than to do wrong; good advisers, relied on by their neighbors, dependable in all things; not ambitious, never striving to lead, but not shirking responsibility when put upon them; not often reaching very conspicuous positions in church or state, but frequently filling offices of much responsibility and usefulness; in short, most excellent citizens. There seems to have been a strong military tendency in the family, and in this profession it has won its greatest distinction; but in theology, medicine, and law it has a good record. Of course, to all these characteristics there have been exceptions, but the record is creditable. May it long continue.

INTRODUCTORY.

In adding another to the large number of family genealogies already in existence, the compiler feels that she is increasing the stock of material now being stored up for the use of future historians. All such human documents are footnotes to history, and will surely aid materially the searcher into the past, who one hundred years from now may be drawing philosophical and physiological deductions from the chronicles he unearths of the restless, energetic race now occupying the territory covered by the United States of America. What results may come from the mingling of all peoples and races on this broad continent it is not the province of this chronicler to consider, but she has endeavored to make this history something that may be useful for future historians. The "directory" plan has not been considered as the fitting or proper one in dealing with the careers of so many individuals who lived in such important eras of this country's history, its settlement, colonization, War for Independence, and the occupation of the West. The account of these individuals' services in war, their exertions in clearing the forests and settling a new territory, their activity and interest in agriculture, commerce, and the industrial enterprises incident in building new commonwealths, are all illustrative of this country's growth, and the cumulative work of human beings. Each individual life has its personal interest, but that cannot be dwelt upon —

"A sleep, a dream, a story,
By strangers quickly told."

But each has his or her place in summing up the family characteristics. And not only in the family, but in the nation. George Eliot says: "That things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who have lived faithfully a hidden life and rest in unvisited tombs." Among the Kingsburys honesty and probity of character appear as marked features, and the trust and confidence inspired by those traits have led to long-continued terms of office in both church and state, especially in the church, for there have been many Deacon Kingsburys. Many have held official positions, and were evidently trusted by their neighbors, as they remained in office for long terms. Others perhaps less conspicuous before the public have done faithful service in their day and generation, discharging their duties "in the various stations to which it pleased God to call them."

The Kingsburys have been represented in every war in which the country has been concerned. Many fought in the French and Indian wars, fifty of Henry's descendants of the name fought in the Revolution; and since then Kingsburys have figured in all the wars in which the United States has been engaged, and they were in the Civil War on both sides. There is a solid, substantial quality in the Kingsburys, conducing to trust, and there is also a good deal of conservatism, perhaps an accompanying trait, which is exemplified in the good old Connecticut Deacon, Joseph Kingsbury, of Enfield, whose epitaph states that he "was a strict supporter of the good old ways of Puritans in their most early days." Pluck and perseverance are marked qualities too, and they were displayed to the fullest extent in the career of James Kingsbury, the first white settler of Cleveland, Ohio, who with his family endured almost unexampled privations.

One of the greatest orators this country has ever produced, Hon. Daniel Webster, was descended from Henry Kingsbury, through his mother, Abigail Eastman, and the wife of our only living ex-President, Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland, is also descended from this same Kingsbury-Eastman line. Senator Eugene Hale of Maine, a prominent statesman of our day, has Kingsbury blood in his veins. During the civil war Gen. Charles P. Kingsbury won distinction by his valuable services as an artillery officer, and the brave young Col. Henry W. Kingsbury was killed at the head of his regiment, the Eleventh Connecticut, at the battle of Antietam. Col. Jacob Kingsbury, of Franklin, Conn., served his country for forty years as a soldier, enlisting in 1775 in the Revolutionary army, and continuing in the service after that war was over; he was engaged for thirty years in the Indian wars on the western frontier. His cousin and cotemporary Hon. Andrew Kingsbury, of Hartford, Conn., also served through the Revolutionary War; then entered the Comptroller's office in Hartford, became Comptroller and Treasurer of the State, holding the latter office twenty-four years; and he was also Treasurer of the School Fund, having much to do with the sale of lands in the Western Reserve of Ohio. Col. Sanford Kingsbury, of Windham, Conn., and Claremont, N. H., was a distinguished Revolutionary officer, serving on Gen. Sullivan's staff, and afterwards a Judge and Councillor in New Hampshire. The Rev. Charles Backus, D.D., of Somers, Conn., a very distinguished divine in his day, and his nephew, Rev. Azel Backus, D.D., first President of Hamilton College, New York, were also descendants.

One of the earliest and most distinguished genealogists in New England, Mr. John Ward Dean, for a long time editor of the Historic-Genealogical Register, Boston, was the son of a Kingsbury mother. He published the first genealogical account of the family, two brief articles in the Register, but he was not the first who collected material for the family history. This honor belongs to Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury, Conn., and the Rev. Lavius Hyde of Bolton, Conn., as is described by Mr. Kingsbury in his Introduction. Finally, Mr. Kingsbury, feeling himself unable to complete the work on account of lack of time, put his materials in the hands of the present compiler, with authority to conduct researches in England. These latter, although not as successful as we could wish in finding the actual place of baptism of Henry Kingsbury, the first settler, have given us much valuable information about the Kingsbury family in Suffolk, to which he undoubtedly belonged. Very careful researches were made in England, at first by an English genealogist, and later by the compiler, in two separate visits to the mother country. The registers were examined in most of the parishes in Babergh Hundred, and also in the neighboring Hundred of Cosford; the wills were examined, not only at Somerset House, London, the great repository for the whole Kingdom, but also the local registries at Bury St. Edmunds and Ipswich. The Subsidy Rolls for Suffolk and Essex, the Feet of Fines, and other documents in the Public Record Office in London, were searched, and also the Chancery Proceedings. The Davy manuscript collection of materials for a history of the County of Suffolk, deposited in the British Museum, comprising over one hundred volumes, containing heraldry, pedigrees, descriptions of churches, monumental inscriptions, an almost inexhaustible store, was looked over, and also many other manuscripts and books in that world-famous library. The Court Rolls for the ancient manors in Boxford are not extant for the period between 1590 and 1650, and that loss, together with the disappearance of several parish registers in that neighborhood about those dates will probably make it impossible for us to discover the baptism of Henry Kingsbury of Ipswich and Haverhill.

The compiler has added much to the material collected by Mr. Kingsbury and she also verified his records, examining town records and registries of probate in eastern Connecticut, and also in Massachusetts and Maine, and visiting many old graveyards. Then, also, so many genealogies and town histories have been printed since Mr. Kingsbury began his collections, that much additional material was derived from those sources. As the compiler was unable to devote her whole time to this work there has been considerable delay, and the work has been prolonged over more years than was anticipated. Delay was also caused by the difficulty of obtaining information from descendants, many letters of inquiry never being answered at all.

The compiler particularly wishes to call the attention of readers of this volume to the Addenda, which contains much material which was not received in time for insertion in the proper place, and also corrections. It is often impossible to decide between conflicting statements furnished by different members of the same family, or by the family and the town records. Gravestones are another fertile source of variation in dates, and the puzzled genealogist can do nothing but note down the figures, and leave the question open. Authorities have been given for military services, and when not cited for family records it will be understood that they are obtained from town and church records, and from the family themselves. It has been impossible to complete all records, but in many cases that has been due to the failure to answer letters of inquiry. The difficulties of compiling a genealogy can only be realized by one who has been through the experience. And there are also pleasures to one who loves to trace the history of the past, and delights in the yellowed pages of old folios, and the quaint script of the old records. It is a delight, too, to pounce upon some isolated record, supplying a long-missing birth or marriage, and identifying some long-lost member of the race, or to find a lonely gravestone bearing an inscription which reveals the last resting-place of some wanderer from the parent stem. The compiler has traversed the region east of the Connecticut river, and the greater part of Tolland and Windham Counties, in search of records and gravestones, as that district and the northern part of New London County were where the sons and grandsons of Henry Kingsbury settled, excepting one whose descendants went mostly to Maine. From Connecticut they went to New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, and Pennsylvania, and from there to Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and the Northwest, and on to the Pacific coast; and there are also several branches of the family living in the Southern States, more especially North Carolina, Georgia, Missouri, and Texas.

From what has already been said it will probably be understood that this work has been carried on at the expense of the Hon. Frederick J. Kingsbury, of Waterbury, Conn., to whose generous munificence the family owes this volume. The cost of the English investigations has been all borne by him, and the numerous charges necessary for traveling expenses, postage, and all the preparatory work necessary before printing, have been most generously defrayed by him. The compiler wishes also to acknowledge gratefully the assistance of the late John Ward Dean, of Boston, whose never-failing interest was always shown most cordially. Thanks are also due to Dr. J. J. Muskett, 56, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, Mr. Andrew Kingsbury and the late Mrs. Mary J. K. Gilbert, both of Coventry, Conn., Rev. Otis O. Wright, Sandy Hook, Conn., Mr. Henry W. Kingsbury, Scranton, Pa., Mr. Frank B. Kingsbury, Fitchburg, Mass., Mr. Lester L. Kingsbury, Baltimore, Md., Mr. William Ward Wight, Milwaukee, Wis., Mr. Guy M. Kingsbury, Dunkirk, Ohio, Mr. Sanford T. Kingsbury, Valdosta, Ga., Mr. Theodore Bryant Kingsbury, Wilmington, N. C., Miss Frances Amelia Clark, Syracuse, N. Y., the Comtesse de Giverville, 12, Rue Cimarosa, Paris, France, Mrs. H. E. Foster, Derby Line, Vt., Mr. Frank W. Kingsbury, Lawrence, Kansas, Mr. Thomas E. Sterne, Worcester, Mass., Mr. John T. Kingsbury, Georgetown, Wash., Miss Ellen M. Dennett, York Village, Maine, the late Benjamin F. Ellis, Hartford, and to many others who have also given assistance in the long and toilsome task.

Perhaps something should be said about the differences in the spelling of the name, as one very important branch of the family use the e instead of u in the second syllable. As far as can be judged from an examination of old records and gravestones in eastern Connecticut the e was generally used by Joseph Kingsbury, who came from Haverhill, and all his immediate descendants, but correct spelling was a matter of such little moment in those days it is difficult to conclude whether this mode was intentionally adopted. There is a tradition that there was a quarrel between two brothers, presumably Joseph and Nathaniel, sons of Joseph², and in consequence one of them would not spell his name the way his brother did, but as I have found the e indifferently used in both lines I doubt the correctness of the legend. The English records show even a greater variety of spelling than those in New England,—“burie, borough, bary, bearey, borrowe,” etc. Cotton Mather states that a certain Rev. Eleazer Kingsbury lopped off the first syllable and changed his name to Bury, and removed to Cape May, perhaps to get away from his aggrieved kinsmen.

Mary Kingsbury Talcott

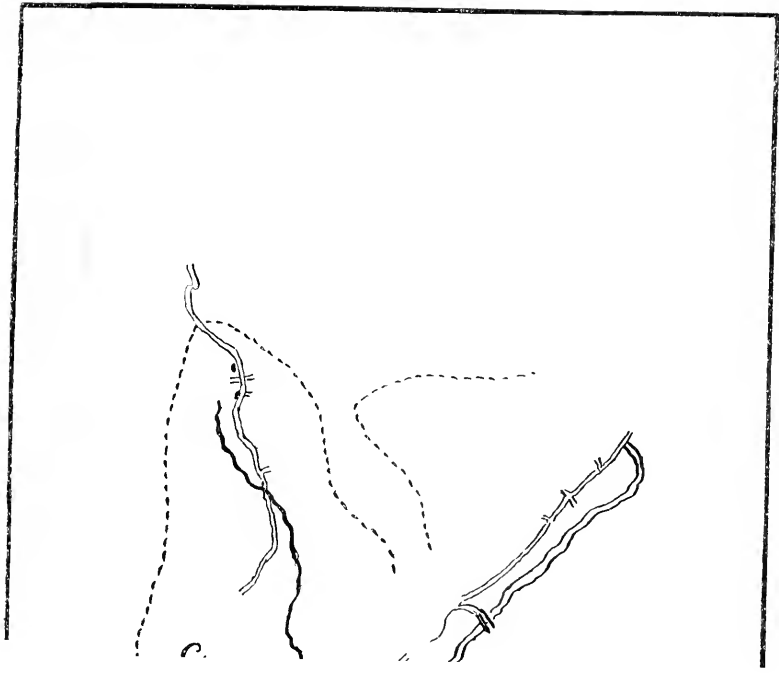

THE FAMILY NAME IN ENGLAND.

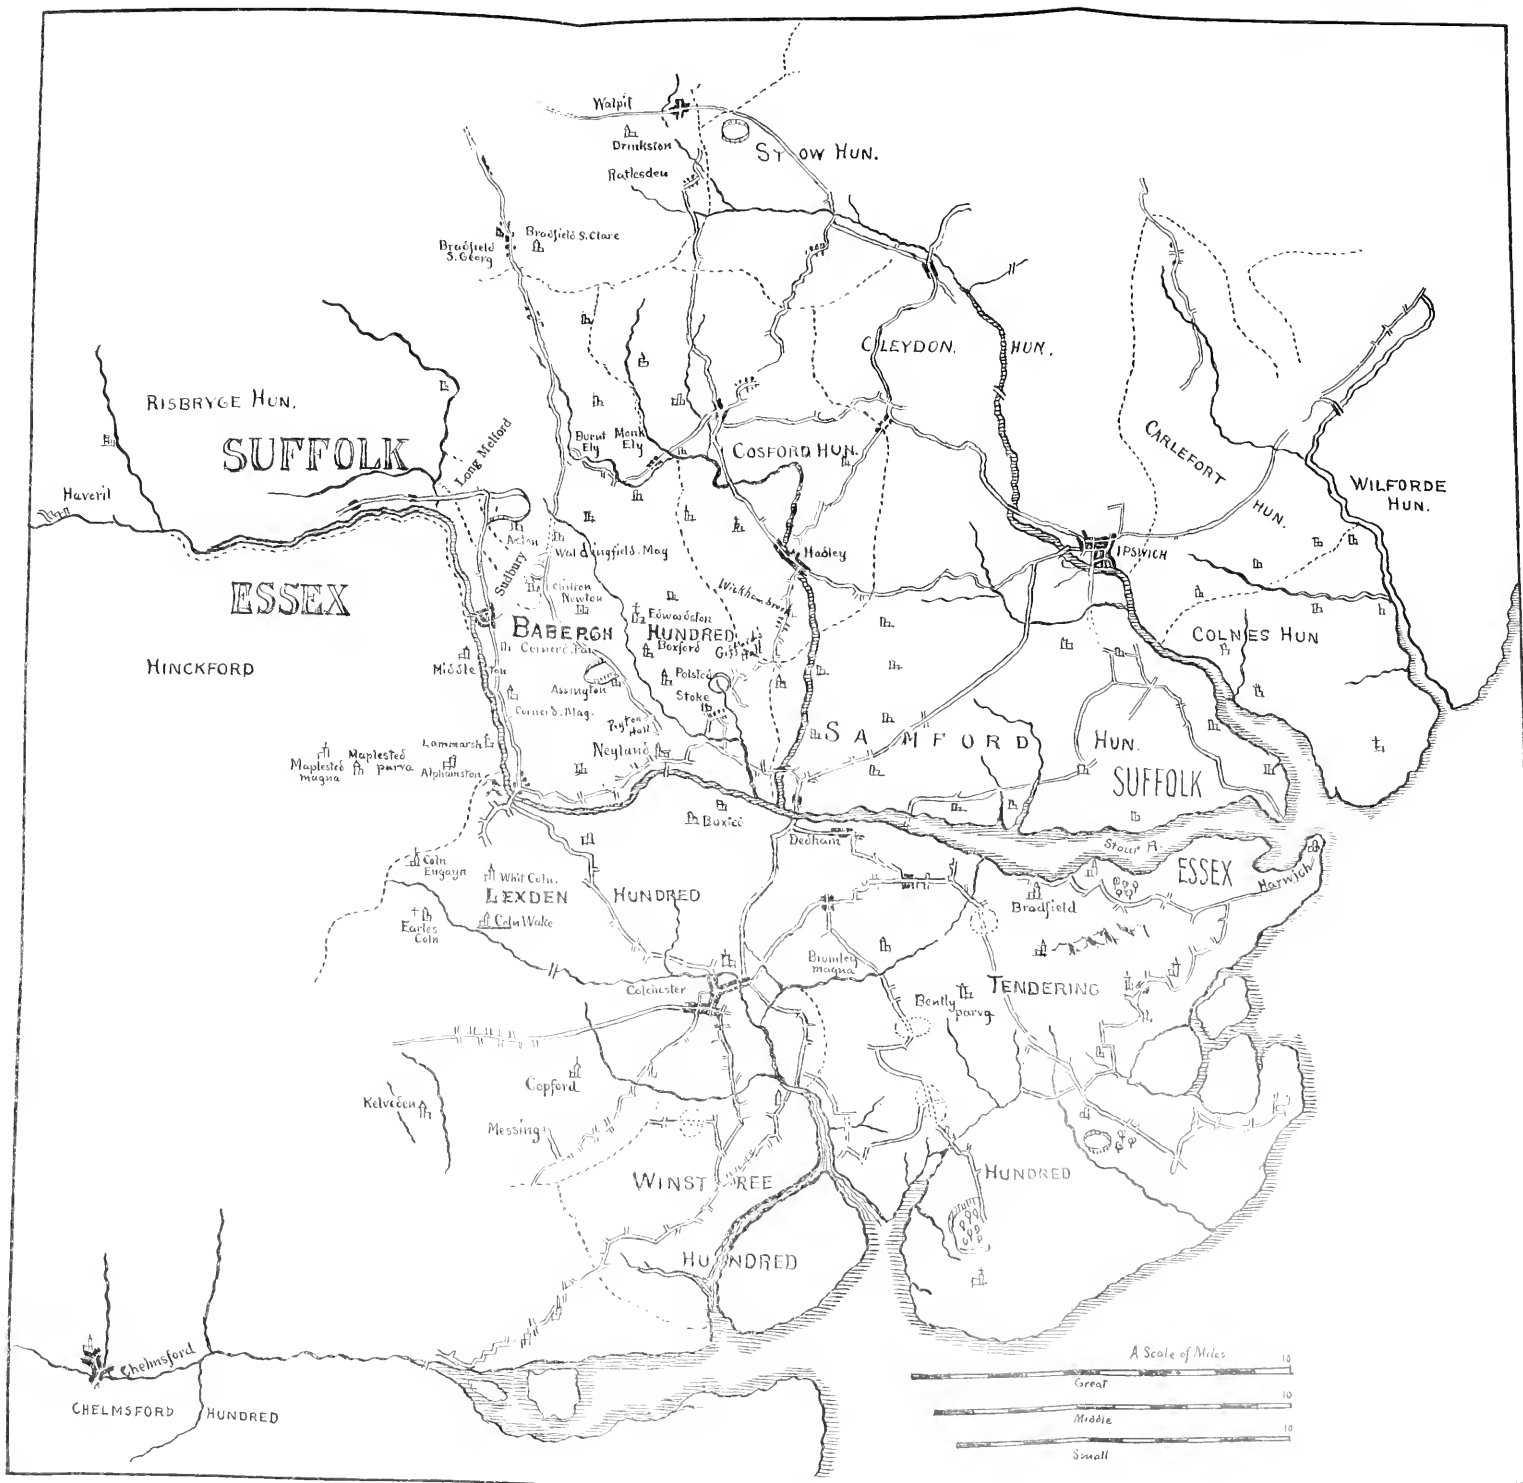

Before reciting the family annals in this country we must turn our attention to our English progenitors. The name is an ancient one, and takes us back to the days of the Saxon Kings—that is, as the name of a place. There were four places of the name in England, one in the County of Middlesex, about eight miles from London, one in Hertfordshire, one in Warwickshire, and Kingsbury East in Kingsbury Hundred, in Somersetshire on the river Parrott. Its ancient name was Kingsbury Episcopii,* and the manor was held by the Bishop of Bath and Wells. Kingsbury in Warwickshire belonged to the famous Countess Godiva, and in the Domesday book is called “Chinesburie.” Leofric, Earl of Mercia, her husband, was descended from the Saxon Kings of Mercia, and inherited their ancient seat. Leofric's granddaughter married Turchil de Arden, one of the Conqueror's Norman Knights, and their granddaughter married Peter de Bracebridge, in whose family the lordship of Kingsbury remained until the time of Queen Elizabeth. A daughter of this race married Sir John Arden, of Arden, who was either the grandfather or great-uncle of Mary Arden, Shakespeare's mother. At all events, Shakespeare was descended from the Ardens, and doubtless had that fact in mind when he wrote the lines—

“ When nightingales in Arden sit and sing
Among the daintie dew-emplèd flowers,” and not the forest of Ardennes in Flanders, as has been claimed by commentators. The Bracebridges lived at Kingsbury Hall, and in the church in Kingsbury their arms

Andrew Kingsbury of Hartford, nearly one hundred years ago, but in those azure is substituted for gules. It is not known where Mr. Kingsbury obtained these arms, but this coincidence is certainly curious. Kings-

There was a stately Pallace that belonged to the Castle of Kingsbury, scituated at the west end of the Town of St. Albans, where the Saxon Kings delighted much, and their Nobles and Officers so often resorted thither that they became a great Burden and Charge to the Abbot and Monks of St. Albans, which induced them to purchase it ; and after they had made many Addresses to the King for it, Alfric, who had been Chancellor to King Etheldred, whilst he was a Secular, prevailed with the King to sell to them all the royal Mannor of Kingsbury, with the Parks and Woods belonging to it, excepting one small Fortress near the Monastery, which the King would not suffer to be demolisht, that the Marks of his Royal House might not be forgotten; and the Abbot and Monks bought and enjoyed it till the time of the Dissolution, when it returned to the Crown." Through various hands it passed to Sir Francis Bacon, Viscount Verulam, Keeper of the Great Seal (the great Lord Bacon), but when the Seal was taken from him, and he retired from the Court, he sold it.—Historical Antiquities of Hertfordshire, by Sir Henry Chauncy, Kt., II. 314.

King Ethelbert was buried at Winburne, and he was the third founder of the monastery of Wilton. Wulstan, Earl of Wilton, fought against Ethelmund, King of the Mercians, and conquered, but received very severe wounds of which he died within a year. He rebuilt an ancient church of St. Mary of Wilton, which had been almost destroyed by the Danes, and established in it a college of priests to offer up continual prayers both for his father, Alchmund, who had been cruelly put to death by Ethelmund, King of the Mercians, and for himself. After the death of Earl Wulstan, his wife Alburga, sister of Egbert, King of the West Saxons, persuaded her brother to make it a monastery of nuns, and of this Egbert is called the first founder. Near this monastery was the residence of Earl Wulstan, and the royal city in which the monastery was established was called Kingsbury, and preserves this name down to the present day. This monastery was founded A. D. 800, and there were twelve nuns besides the abbess.

"Chingesberie, Hundred of Helstone, Middlesex, tenet Ernulf de Hedsings."—Domesday Book.

The first individual of the name that is known to us is Gilbert de Kingsbury, who was the incumbent of St. Peter's Church, Kingsbury, Warwickshire, about 1300. He probably derived his surname from the place. In 1368 we find a William de Kingsbury mentioned in the will of Gervase de Wyllesford, Rector of Barnak, in Northamptonshire. There are quite a number of ecclesiastics of the name. David Kynnesbury (alias ap Simon), was Vicar of Cheshunt, Herts, appointed April 12, 1480, died 1503. Thomas Kingsbury was Archdeacon of St. Albans, 1517, and it was apparently another Thomas Kingsbury who was Archdeacon in 1531, and was removed at the dissolution of the monasteries.* A Rev. Thomas Kingsbury was Rector of a Parish in Suffolk, temp. Jac. I.—Suffolk Traveller. At Halford, Kineton Hundred, Warwickshire, on the river Stone, in the southern part of the county, is a gravestone near the door of the church bearing this inscription: "Hic jacet Magister, Henricus Kyngesberie quondam Rector estius ecclesie, qui obiit 1 die mensis Marcii An. D. MCCCCLXXXVII—Cujus Animæ proprietur Deus Amen." Then in the list of the incumbents is the following: "Henr. Kynnesbury, qui obiit 1 die mensis Marcii A. D. 1487."

But these ecclesiastics simply show us that the name appears in different places and that the family must have been of some consequence, especially as several of them were Benedictines, who were called "the gentlemanly monks," and were the most learned order in Europe, recruited mostly from the higher classes of society. The Abbot of St. Albans had a seat in the House of Lords, and took precedence of all other Abbots in England. The first one of the name of real importance to us is William de Kyngesbury, whose name appears on the roll of Caxton's Manor, in Little Cornard, in Suffolk, as early as 1369, in the reign of Edward III, and continues until 1412, in the time of Henry IV, when he held Wattyscroft in the Manor of Little Cornard, the Lordship of Thomas de Grey.* In 1414 appears the name of John de Kingsbury. Perhaps they were father and son, or perhaps brothers. Whether they came from Kingsbury Hall, in Warwickshire, or from Kingsbury Episcopii in Somerset, or from Kingsbury in Middlesex, or were an offshoot from a Kingsbury family in Dorset, we shall probably never know, but they were undoubtedly the ancestors of the family in Suffolk from which our ancestor, Henry Kingsbury, came, and 500 years is a very respectable antiquity for a family name.

There was a family named Kingsbury in County Dorset, who bore for a coat of arms, "Azure, a chevron or between two doves in chief proper, and a serpent in base of the last. Crest, a wyvern vert." Motto, "Prudens et innocens," perhaps referring to the juxtaposition of the doves and serpent. This may be the original stock, and John de Kingsbury may have come from them.

* Court Rolls 1 Henry V. Suffolk Archeological Collections, VI, 20.

Among the wills in the probate registry at Bury St. Edmunds, in Suffolk, is that of John Kyngesbury, the elder, of Cornard Magna, dated August 10, 1539. He was probably a descendant of the man of the same name who was living in Little Cornard rather more than one hundred years before. He bequeaths his soul to Almighty God and to "our Lady Saynte Mary, and to all the blessed Saints in Glorbye," and desires his body to be buried in the churchyard of St. Andrewes of Cornard. He mentions his wife, Elyn, several daughters, and two sons, John the elder and John the younger. In 1542, three years later, we find in the Lay Subsidy Rolls the names of two John Kyngesburys, one in Cornard Magna, and one in Cornard Parva, probably the same two Johns, and in 1544 one of them was in Newton, an adjoining parish. It therefore seems probable that one of these Johns was the John Kingsbury who in 1578 was living in Edwardstone, another adjacent parish, and had two sons, James and Roger. They had litigation about their father's property at that time, and it is stated that he was an aged man.

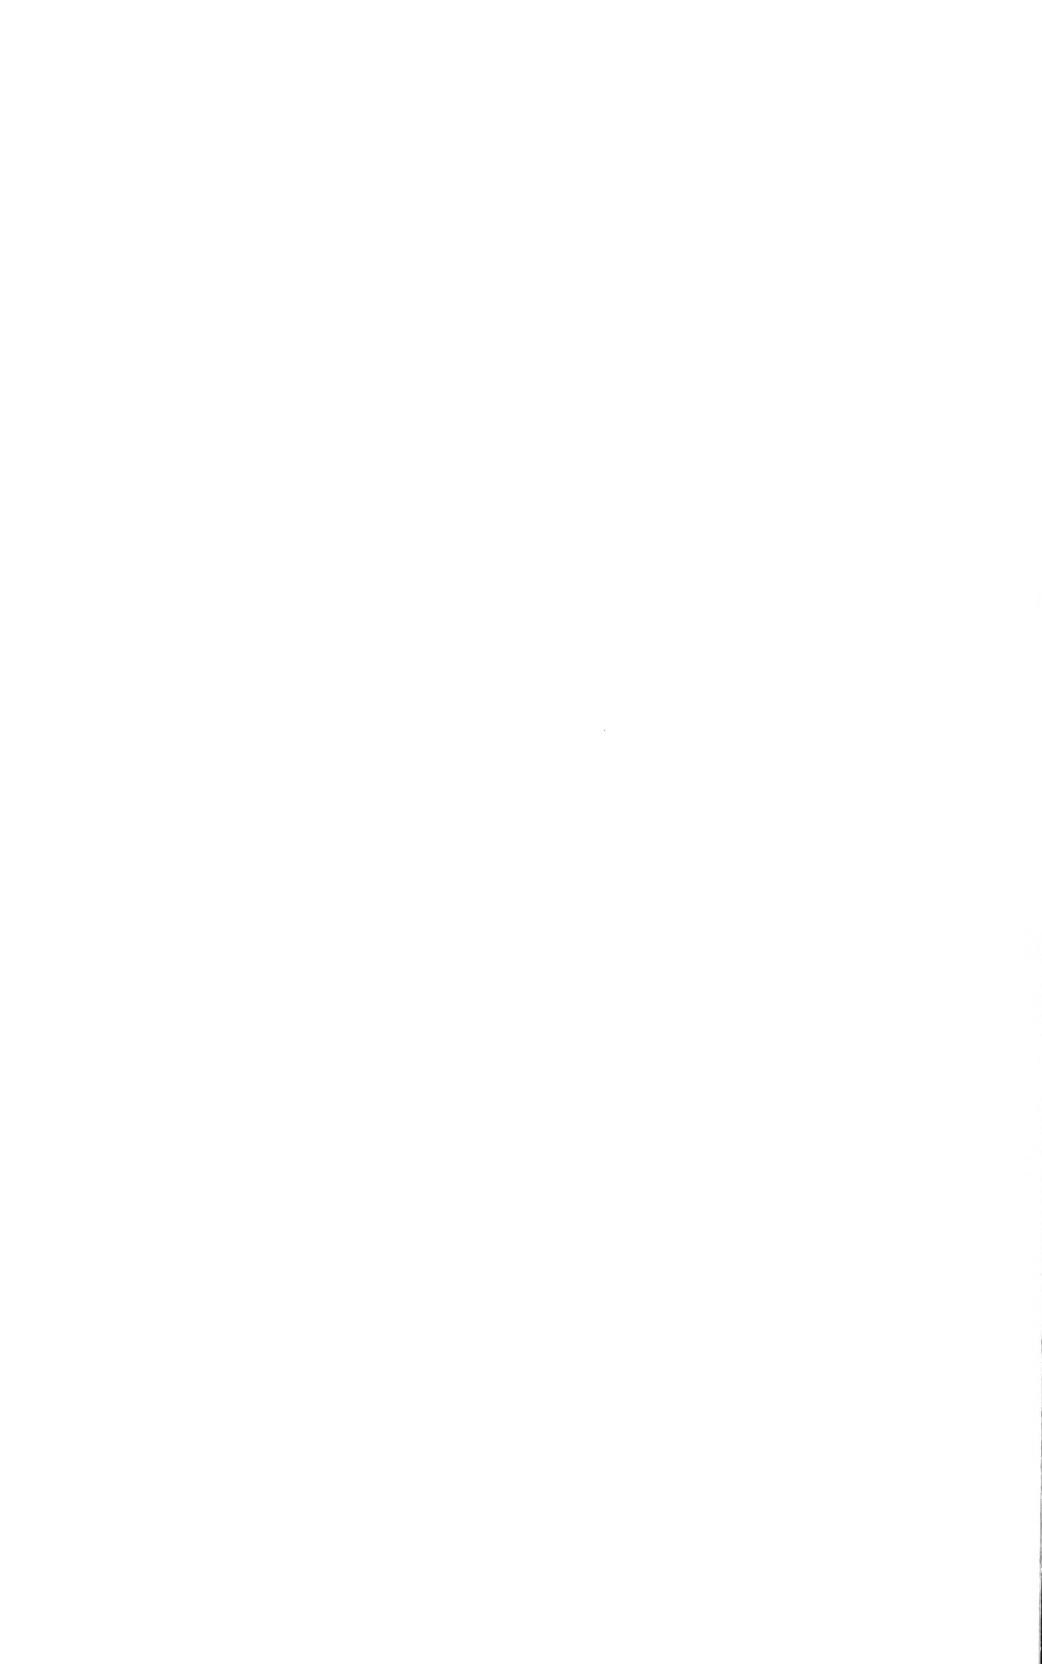

This James Kingsbury died in Boxford, another near by parish, in 1590, leaving a wife, Agnes, and several sons. The oldest was James, who married Ann Francis in 1584, and had eight children, five sons and three daughters. Only two of them, James and Sarah, were baptized at Boxford, but James' will gives the names of all. The sons were: James, Henry, John, Joseph, and Thomas. Here we have the names of the three brothers who came to New England, Henry, John, and Joseph, and Thomas, another brother, undoubtedly the Thomas Kingsbury who, according to Gov. Winthrop, agreed to come, but never fulfilled his promise. As we know that John and Joseph of Dedham were brothers, and as John of Dedham names his kinsman, Henry Kingsbury of Haverhill, an equal devisee with the children of his brother Joseph, it would seem as if our Henry, of Ipswich and Haverhill, was a son of one of the other brothers, and a grandson of James Kingsbury of Boxford, who died in 1622. What more likely than that he should have been the son of Thomas, who never came, but sent his son in his stead? Look at the names of our Henry's sons, John, Ephraim, James, Samuel, Thomas, Joseph, four of the Christian names repeated that appear in the will of James of Boxford, and he himself bore the fifth name. Although none of them are uncommon names, it would appear that this repeated juxtaposition could hardly be accidental.

Another point in identifying these relationships is that the wife of John Kingsbury of Dedham was named Margaret, and on the Assington parish register is recorded the marriage of John Kingsbury and Margaret Whisson in 1618. Also on the same register is the marriage of Henry Kingsbury and Margaret Alabaster in 1621, and Henry K., who came with Winthrop, had a wife named Margaret, and two children, James and Sarah, were baptized at Assington, probably the two children who were sick with the measles on board the "Talbot" in the harbor of Cowes. So everything seems to fit in properly.

Margaret Alabaster was undoubtedly the widow of Thomas Alabaster, who died in Assington in 1620. He had married, July 8, 1618, Margaret Blyth, and was the son of Roger Alabaster of Hadleigh, Suffolk, and Bridget Winthrop, his wife, daughter of Adam Winthrop, Esq., of Groton, and aunt of Gov. John Winthrop. Thus, Henry Kingsbury, the elder, married the widow of a first cousin of Gov. Winthrop, and this makes it very natural that he should be trusted, as he evidently was by Winthrop, with very important matters of business.

A man holding a very responsible position, as a steward, or agent, might be called in those days a "servant," but that did not mean that he performed the duties of a menial. The word is often met with in old letters and records, but with a very different meaning from its present usage. Frequently younger sons and relatives of a family were employed by the head of the house, or lived in his household, and were called "servants," but they were not the hirelings of the present day.

The Alabaster family held a very high position in Suffolk, and it is hardly likely that the widow of one of them would marry a man of mean extraction or position.* A letter in the Winthrop Papers written by Rev. Henry Jacie, the minister at Assington, speaks of Henry Kingsburie's commission to obtain several books of theology, books that would only be read by a man of some education, and in those days a man who could read such books would have to be a man of learning.

In considering these things it is necessary to remember the standards of those days, and that the conditions of life in the England of Elizabeth and James I were very different from those in either the England or the United States of the present day. It is evident from the wills of the Suffolk Kingsburys that they possessed considerable land, and were well supplied with household goods, and that they were yeomen, the class next to the gentry, and frequently descended from the gentry, younger sons, etc. There is plenty of evidence that in the same family one branch would be in the Herald's Visitation as gentry and another would be yeomen. They were the bowmen and spearmen who won Agincourt for Henry V, and fought the battles of the English Kings in France for generations, the backbone of the nation.

" A Knight of Cales, a Gentleman of Wales, and a Laird of the North Countree,
A Yeoman of Kent, with his yearly rent, will buy them out all three."

So says an old English ballad, and this shows the estimation in which the yeoman was held; a class that has now disappeared, and is mourned by many English writers of the Victorian age.

*Ann Alabaster, first cousin of Thomas Alabaster, married Dr. John Still, Bishop of Bath and Wells, and at one time Rector of Hadleigh, Suffolk. He was the author of the first true English play, "Gammer Gurton's Needle," represented in Christ's College, Cambridge, about 1565, with its well-known drinking-song :

" I love no rost, but a nut-brown toste
And a crab laid in the fyre.
A little bread shall do me stead,
Much bread I not desyre ;
No froste nor snow nor winde, I trow,
Can hurte me if it wolde,
I am so wrapt and throwly lapt
Of jolly good ale and olde."

As the Kingsburys were so closely connected with Suffolk, some description of that region may be interesting. In order to visit Assington, Boxford, Groton, and Edwardstone, one goes from London to Sudbury, a distance of about fifty miles by rail across Essex, and then obtains a conveyance at the "Rose and Crown Inn," to drive through Great Cornard, on the river Stour, and then through Newton to Boxford. Edwardstone is at the further end of Boxford street, Assington is just beyond, and Polstead and Stoke-next-Nayland lie on the Essex border. The country is gently rolling, fertile, and well cultivated, and the landscape is very pleasing. The frequent windmills remind one of Holland and Nantucket. Gainsborough, a native of Sudbury in this County, has painted these hamlets and forests in some of his most beautiful pictures, and Suffolk was a favorite sketching-ground for the early English water-colorists. Boxford is a typical English village with two closely built, winding streets (like the Boston "cow-paths"), old red brick buildings with thatched roofs, not a few of them probably of seventeenth century date. There is also a free grammar school, founded by Queen Elizabeth, for twenty boys. Opposite the "Fleece Inn" at the upper end of the village, and reached by a foot bridge over the little river Box, is the pleasant old house occupied by Mr. Kingsbury, a house builder in Boxford, with flower-garden and lawn. The compiler met two or three members of the Kingsbury family, now living in Boxford, who received her with old-fashioned hospitality, and they stated that they were descended from one Roger Kingsbury, probably Roger, brother of the first James K. of Boxford. The great flint church, St. Mary's, is the most imposing object in Boxford, a spacious edifice of the Early Third Pointed period. This excellent and skillful masonry of cut flint is a marked characteristic of Suffolk churches. "There is much variety of tracery in the many windows of the church, and here and there suggestions of flamboyant motifs. It includes a clerestoried nave, choir, aisles prolonged to the east end of the choir, north and south porches, the former of oak, with groinings of the same material, and two bays, with open sides traceried, the other of stone elaborately paneled, with seven niches over the entrance with a number of inscriptions nearly obliterated, and at the west end an embattled tower containing a clock and eight bells, and surmounted by a slender spire or fleche. With the exception of the north porch the whole building was restored in 1888. There is a carved oak door in the tower, and a small door in the south choir aisle, in addition to the entrances from the porches."* Floods of light stream through the great windows, but the interior of the church is quite plain, with few monuments. Probably the Puritans visited the church in Cromwell's time, and destroyed the stained glass and ancient monuments, as they did in so many Suffolk churches. There is a mural tablet with a singular epitaph:

In memory of
ELIZABETH HYAM of this Parish, for the fourth time a Widow;
who by a Fall, that brought on a mortification was at last hastened to her End
on the 4th May, 1748, in her 113th Year.

Our name occurs frequently in the Parish Register, and James Kingsbury, the father of Henry and John and Joseph, left a sum of money to be distributed to the poor of the parish at his funeral, and he and his parents left directions in their wills that they should be buried in the churchyard.

About a mile from the village, situated in the parishes of Boxford, Stoke, and Assington, is Peyton Hall, now a farmhouse, an estate granted by William the Conqueror to Robert Malet, the progenitor of the ancient family of Peyton, by whom the manor was long possessed. The widow Annis Kingsbury of Boxford, in her will, dated 1602, gives to her son Henry, "my Indenture of Lease which I hold under Sir John Peyton, of Iselham in the County of Cambridge, Knight."†

Assington, which is also a place of interest for the Kingsburys, lies close by Boxford, but it is a much smaller village, and the old Hall, a fine Jacobean building, where the Gurdons lived in Henry Kingsbury's time, and still live, and the closely adjoining beautiful little church of St. Edmund, both stand in the park, some distance from the hamlet, and on the site of the field of the last battle fought between the Saxons and the Danes, in 1016, and known as Assandun. Groton, the home of the Winthrops, is only half a mile from Boxford, and Edwardstone the same distance in another direction. At Edwardstone the church and "great house" are also close together in a beautiful park. It was formerly a village of considerable note on account of the Montchensy family, who once resided there, and there was also a religious house, a cell to the monastery at Abingdon, near Oxford. The parish registers are unfortunately lost before 1645, and that is probably the reason why we cannot find the baptisms of more of the particular Kingsbury family that we want. Stoke-next-Nayland, where there were many Kingsburys about 1600, lies two or three miles south of Boxford. The church tower, one of the finest in the County, deserves special notice. The west doorway is very rich, and the paneling of plinth and battlement very fine. In one of the chancel chapels, enclosed by screenwork, are monuments for the two wives of John Howard, Duke of Norfolk, who fell at Bosworth. Constable, writing con amore of his native valley, thus describes this place: "Stoke Nayland, though by no means one of the largest, certainly ranks with the great churches of the Eastern Counties, . . . with its majestic tower, which, from its commanding height, may be said to impart a portion of its own dignity to the surrounding country." Between Stoke-by-Nayland and Shelly stands Gifford's Hall,* a fine residence of the age of Henry VIII (1538), although some parts are much older. It will readily be seen how closely connected geographically all those places are, and what close relationships there must have been among the settlers who joined Governor Winthrop's colony.

Various particulars have been gathered relating to the name of Kingsbury in England, and some of the individuals evidently are connected with the Suffolk family, while others belong to the family in the south of England. William Kingsbury, Gent., of Bungay, Suffolk, was buried in

William Kingsbury, a dissenting minister, born July 12, 1744, Bishopsgate street, London, was a son of Thomas Kingsbury, who died in 1753. He married, in 1768, a daughter of Rev. Mordecai Andrews, of London. He resided in Southampton, and was a strong supporter of the movement that developed into the London Missionary Society. He published in 1798 a volume entitled "An Apology for Village Preaching." His son, Thomas, was the father of the Rev. Thomas Lack Kingsbury, born 1822, became a clergyman of the Church of England and Canon of Sarum, residence Coombe Bisset Vicarage, Salisbury; died in 1899.

NOTES FROM THE LAY SUBSIDY ROLLS.

"The principal value of these is genealogical. The rolls containing the names of the persons assessed are extremely valuable, as establishing links in pedigrees, which without these rolls would be missing. The rolls from which material of this nature is chiefly to be derived are the grants of 23 Edw. I., and 1 and 6 Edw. III. and the Pole taxes of 51 Edw. III., and 2 and 4 Ric. II. Then, with but trifling exceptions, the rolls supply no names until 14 Hen. KINGSBURY.

The first Kingsbury in New England was Henry Kingsbury, who came in the Talbot, one of the ships in Governor Winthrop's fleet, in 1630. He lived near Winthrop in England, at Assington, the next parish to Groton, and there are references to him in the Winthrop Papers, published by the Massachusetts Historical Society, which show that he was employed in some way by Winthrop, perhaps as a messenger, or sheriff's officer, of Winthrop's manorial court, and they also indicate a somewhat intimate connection between the two men. The subjoined letters from the Rev. Henry Jacie to the Winthrops sustain this supposition. Mr. Jacie was a chaplain in the family of Brampton Gurdon, Esq., of Assington, and quite a prominent Puritan divine. There are several other references to Kingsbury in the Winthrop Papers. Governor Winthrop writes to his wife, "From aboard the Arbella, riding at the Cowes, March 28, 1630," just before the departure from England, "Henry Kingsbury hath a child or two in the Talbot sick with the measles, but like to do well."* After his arrival, in writing to his son, John Winthrop, Jun^r, July 23, 1630, from Charlestown, he again mentions him, saying that "Henry Kingsbury hath appointed money to be paid to you by [—]."† John Winthrop the younger, in a letter to his father in Massachusetts, dated Dec. 9, 1630, in speaking of a document to be executed, evidently an indenture, or lease, conveying lands, says: "M^r. Gurdon desireth that M^r. Ludlow‡ and goodman Kingsbury of Assington be 2 of the witnesses to

* Winthrop's New England, I, 360.

† Ibid., I, 375.

‡ Roger Ludlow, afterwards Deputy-Governor of Massachusetts, and later of Connecticut.

it."* Thomas Kingsbury, perhaps a brother of Henry, agreed to embark with him, but apparently never came.† In the addenda to Winthrop's History of New England the Governor gives an account of cows and other animals that he had, and also says that he had one of Kingsbury's cows. Ephraim Child, of Roxbury, writing to Governor Winthrop, letter undated, says: "The last night, late, goodman Pease sent yo^r servant, Henry Kingsbury, for a payre of bullocks." ‡

In the Parish Register at Assington are two entries, among the marriages, of the name of Kingsbury:

1618, John Kingsbery and Margaret Whisson, the 8th of March.

1621, Henerie Kingsberie and Margaret Alabaster, the 18th of May.

These are, perhaps, the two men referred to in the Winthrop Papers, and presumably the same Henry and John Kingsbury who were in the Massachusetts Colony at an early date: Henry in Boston in 1630, and John at Watertown in 1635, afterwards of Dedham. Henry Kingsbury and Margaret his wife were admitted to the First Church, Boston, and are numbered 25 and 26 on the list. Savage says in his Genealogical Dictionary, III, 28: "Against her name being written 'dead since'; that means, I presume, to refer to original MS. lost after the third or fourth year." There is no further record of either of them, and it is supposed that the children who were sick on the Talbot in March, 1630, must have died then, or at a subsequent time. It is possible that Henry Kingsbury returned to England. Indeed that seems the most probable reason that we can find no record of his death, or administration on his property. On the Parish Register at Assington are recorded the baptisms of two children of Henry and Margaret:

1622, James Kingsberie the sonne of Henrie Kingsberie and Margaret his wife, the first of September.

1624, Sarah Kingsbury the daughter of Henry Kingsbury and Margrett his wife, the first of August.

* Winthrop Papers, M. H. S. C., Fifth Series, VIII, 27.

† Winthrop's New England, II, 340.

‡ In 1639, John Winthrop made a draft of a will, not then completed, in which he mentions "my three oxen in Eph. Child's keeping."

The Register at Assington also records the marriage of Thomas Alabaster, and Margaret Blyth, the 8th of July, 1618, and the burial of Thomas Alabaster, the 18th of September, 1620. It seems very probable that this widow Margaret Alabaster was the Margaret Alabaster who married Henry Kingsbury the following year. Thomas Alabaster was the son of Roger Alabaster, of Hadleigh, and Bridget Winthrop, his wife, daughter of Adam Winthrop, Esq., of Groton, and aunt of Governor John Winthrop.

This shows a connection between Henry Kingsbury's wife and the Winthrops, and makes it very natural that he should be employed by them in looking after their affairs. It may be remarked that the word "servant" in those days did not possess the entirely servile meaning given it now, and a man holding a very responsible position, such as steward, or agent, might be called a "servant," not meaning thereby that he performed menial duties. The Alabaster family was a prominent one at Hadleigh, in Suffolk,* where there are memorial brasses in the church, one of Thomas Alabaster, 1592, an uncle of Thomas Alabaster, of Assington. A daughter of this Thomas Alabaster married John Still, D.D., Bishop of Bath and Wells, a once famous divine, and author of "Gammer Gurton's Needle," the earliest English comedy. William Alabaster, son of Roger and Bridget (Winthrop) Alabaster, and brother of Thomas of Assington, was a clergyman and a poet, celebrated in his day for the depth of his erudition, and the beauty of his Latin verses. He was born in Hadleigh in 1568, and received his early education in the Grammar School of his native town, an A.B. of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1587, and A.M. 1591. In 1592 he was incorporated of the University of Oxford, and Wood in his "Athenæ Oxonienses" speaks of him as "the rarest poet and Grecian that any day, age or nation ever produced." He held the rectory of Thorfield, in Hertfordshire, and was made a Prebendary of St. Paul's, and in 1614 a D.D. He died in 1640, after a life spent in literary and philosophical pursuits. Another brother, John Alabaster, was baptized in Groton in 1580, and "was killed in warre in the lowe countries," according to the Parish Register.

REV. HENRY JACIE TO JOHN WINTHROP.*

To the Right Worshipfull Mr. Winthrop in London these be dd.

WORTHY SIR. — Mr. Gurdon riding toward Dedham this morning (not to return this day) call'd at the house of our honest neighbor Goodman Kingsbury and then perceiving how ill he was, he being in bed there, he wished them there to send for me to come thither to see and here how it was with him, that I might write to your worship to certify you thereof: for he had writ to you but knew not so well how this party was.

Now these are therefor to inform your Worship according to his and his wifes relation (of whose truth I dare not doubt) that he is of great weakenes, and more within this fortnight than of late, insomuch that one Physitian tells him he is in danger of his life, another saith he is so dangerously sick he dare not advise him to purge, it would kill him, nor to let him blood he is so weak, and that he is in danger of a consumption, the state of his body being changed to worse, so that now he is not able to go about his ordinary work. He endeavored of late to have done somewhat. easily, but hath been the worse ever since, so that he hath been glad to keep his bed til noon or thereabout every day this sennight. Altogether unable to travel.

Whereas he had a warrent of your Worship to attach the bodies of his assaulters to appear at the Assize, one that was the Constables deputy (as he said) left word at his house from Sir Robert (Crane), that they were brought before him, and he had bound them over to the Sessions. Now he fearing lest things should not be rightly carried, (not being able to go thither if he should live so long) desires your Worships direction what course might be thought best to be taken, and your furtherance therein for having the case brought to the Size if it may be and you think good.

As to himself he is noways able to go to London for my Lords assistance to take his oath, &c. But if need be his brother would be willing to go for him. I need not use any motives to one that so knows the cause & whose heart the Lord hath set for him & his & to be with the Lord to help against the mighty. The Lord enable your Worship still to proceed in so doing. Yea while you are for Him he will be for you, he will not leave you nor forsake you. To whose Grace which is sufficient I desire humbly to command you & so I take my leave resting

JOHN KINGSBURY, WATERTOWN, 1635; freeman March 3, 1635/6; removed that year to Dedham. He was one of the signers—the 6th in order—to the petition to the Massachusetts General Court, Sept. 6, 1636, for the incorporation of Dedham. “John Kingsbury & his wife who were members of y^e church of watertowne giving very good testimony of y^e grace of god & being dismissed unto us from y^e # were received y^e 20 of y^e 8 month.” [1639.] Dedham Church Records, 22. He was a proprietor of Dedham, held town offices, was one of the Seven Men chosen to order the Town’s affairs, May 17, 1639, and Representative to the General Court in 1647. “John Kingsbury after a long weakness of 3 years and upward departed this life y^e 7^m 1660.” Church Records, 37. His will is in the Suffolk Registry of Wills, Lib. I, 350; dated 1659, second day of tenth month; to John Allen, pastor, 40^{sh}; to Bro: Josiph one booke—D^r Preston’s work, “paules repentance,” one other book, “the Deceatfulnes of the hart,”—Dykes’ work—one of M^r. Conyers work upon Rom: y^e 8; to John Kingsbury, the son of my Brother aforesayd my bible and my psalme book; to wife Margaret the use of Estate Real and Personal during Life— $\frac{1}{2}$ of whole estate to her & her heirs forever; all that she does not have occasion to use, at her decease to be divided $\frac{1}{2}$ to her heirs: of the other $\frac{1}{2}$, Fifteen Pounds to John afores^d when 21 years old; five pounds to Thomas Cooper of Seacangue, my Kinsman; remainder to kinsman Henry Kingsbery, of Ipswich, and to each of the children of my brother, Joseph. My friends & kinsmen, Thomas Fuller, of Dedham, & Thomas Cooper, of Seacunge [Seekonk], overseers. Witnesses Eliezar Lusher, John Howard. Sworn to and proved 16 8 mo, 1660.

The will of Mrs. Margaret Kingsbury, of Dedham, is dated 9th of 11th mo called January, 1660. She mentions Sarah, wife of Robert Crosseman, of Taunton, and gives her £5; to kinsman, Tho^s Fuller, £20. Remainder to Tho^s Fuller and his wife, Hannah, “my neare kinswoman’s” children, to be paid when the sons are 21 years, the daughters 18 years of age. Tho^s Fuller to be sole Executor. Witnesses, Samuel May, Eleazar Lusher. Sworn to, and proved, 20, (3), 1662. Thomas Fuller’s wife was Hannah Flower, m^d Nov. 22, 1643.

She was probably the Hanna — "ye kinswoman of our br: Kingsbury," who was received into the church at Dedham, March 11, 1641. Thomas Fuller mentions in his will, Sept. 24, 1690, property received by his children from their aunt, Margaret Kingsbury, and Thomas' children call her "our great aunt" in a division of land, Feb. 15, 1703. Suffolk Registry of Deeds, VII. 118. See also N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, LII. 241, showing that Thomas Fuller was a son of Ralph Fuller, of Wortwell, Norfolk.

The brother Joseph mentioned in John Kingsbury's will was JOSEPH KINGSBURY, OF DEDHAM, freeman, June 2, 1641. He was there earlier, for at the formation of the church in 1638 he was thought "too much addicted to the world," but on the 9th of the 2^d m: 1641 "y^e church was so well p'suaded of his repentance and faith as y^t he was received into y^e fellowship of y^e church." According to the following record his wife was admitted before he was. Between Nov., 1638, and April 24, 1639, "y^e Wife of Joseph Kingsbury who appeared to y^e church a tender hearted soule full of feares and temptations, but truly breathing after Christ." Dedham Church Records, 25. He died in 1676. Will dated May 3, 1675, probated June 1, 1676; he bequeathes to sons Joseph, John, Eliezer, and Nathaniel, wife Milicent, daughter Sarah Crossman, son-in-law Thomas Cooper, sons-in-law Robert Crossman, and Nathaniel Brewer; refers to deceased brother, John Kingsbury.

HENRY KINGSBURY

OF HAVERHILL, MASS., AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

HENRY KINGSBURY was at Ipswich in 1638, according to Felt's History. The Hammatt Papers do not give his residence so early, but state that he was a commoner in Ipswich in 1641. He subscribed 2^s. to the Major Denison fund, Dec. 19, 1648. The same year, 1648, Feb. 8, he sold his farm in Ipswich, 32 acres, for £5 to Thomas Safford, but this does not mean that he left Ipswich then, for the same year he bought of Daniel Ladd, of Haverhill, "house and land on High St. in Ipswich,"* and twelve years later, Aug. 30, 1660, Henry Kingsbury and Susan his wife, of Ipswich, sold to Robert Lord their House and Land on High Street for two Oxen in hand — £5 to be paid Robert Paine and 40^s to Edmund Bridges. The same year Henry Kingsbury, Rowley, late of Ipswich, and Susan his wife, sold six acres to Reinold Foster. Henry Kingsbury was one of the inhabitants of Ipswich who signed a petition, May 17, 1658, stating that they have all taken the oath of fidelity, but are not freemen. They claim the right to vote in town affairs, which had been questioned in town meeting. Mass. Archives, 112, fol. 104. In 1661-2-3 he was overseer "for Pentucket side," for fences and highways in Rowley. His farm was on the Merrimack in that part of Rowley afterwards Bradford. March 3, 1667-68, "it was voted and granted that Henry Kingsbury shall have ten acres of land which is to be laid out unto him, adjoining to M^r Ward's farm, to the west of Hawke's meadow path, not prejudicing any other man." Haverhill Records. In 1669 he gave a deposition in court, and stated that he was 54 years old, therefore born in 1615. This shows that he could not have been a son of the elder Henry and Margaret Alabaster, who were married in 1621, although the elder Henry may have had a previous wife. A Henry Kingsbury was married to Jane Waryn, Dec. 5, 1613, at Stoke by Neyland, County Suffolk, and it is quite possible that they were the parents of Henry of Ipswich and Haverhill, and it may be the same Henry who later married Margaret Alabaster, and came to New England. Still, there is no evidence to show that the younger Henry was a son of the elder.* As Ipswich was settled under the leadership of the younger John Winthrop, the fact that Henry Kingsbury was an early settler there would seem to indicate that the connection between the Winthrops and the Kingsburys, before spoken of, lasted for another generation in this country. It may also be remarked that at Haverhill, where Henry Kingsbury finally settled, the Saltonstalls owned much land, and they married with a family from the same Suffolk neighborhood, the Gurdons of Assington. The Rev. John Ward, the first minister of Haverhill, was born in Haverhill, in Suffolk, and his first service in the ministry was at Hadleigh, in Suffolk, only a few miles from Boxford and Assington.

*The present writing witnesseth that Daniel Ladd, of Haverhill, in the County of Norfolk, husbandman, for and in consideration of ten pounds to him in hand paid, have bargayned and sould and by these presents doth confirm that his bargayne and sale unto Henry Kingsbury, of Ipswich, in the County of Essex, husbandman, all that his house wherein the said Henry now dwelleth; situate and being in Ipswich aforesaid, in the street called High Street, having the orchard and garden of William Payne on the Northwest, a lane towards the Southeast; one end abutting on the said street; butting at the other end on the land of Thomas Safford. To have and to hold the said house with the land about it, and all the appurtenances and priviledges thereto belonging, unto the aforesaid Henry Kingsbury and his heirs forever.

* As stated before, John Kingsbury of Dedham, called Henry, of Haverhill, his kinsman, and made him an equal devisee with the children of his brother Joseph.

neighbor of Kingsbury.* Gage deposed in 1662 that he was aged about 58, therefore a somewhat older man than Kingsbury. His first wife was Amee, who died in June, 1658. Either she was Kingsbury's sister, or Kingsbury married Gage's sister.† Gage died March 24, 1672-3; his will mentions wife Sarah, five sons and one grandson. Henry Kingsbury was one of the appraisers of John Gage's estate, March 26, 1673, and also of Jonathan Gage's estate, March 15, 1674/5.

JOHN KINGSBURY

II John² Kingsbury (Henry¹), of Haverhill, married Elizabeth, daughter of Matthias Button, of Ipswich and Haverhill. Eliz^a Button, y^e wife of Matthias Button of Haverhill, conveys to her son-in-law, John Kingsbury, land in H., "being part of y^e land given me by my husband, Matthias Button, Dec. 28, 1670." Essex Registry of Deeds, xxxviii, 229. The Button Genealogy, a pamphlet printed in 1889, by A. Button, of Grand Rapids, Mich., states that Elizabeth, daughter of Matthias Button and Lettyce his wife, born in Ipswich, 1645, married in 1666, John Kingsbury, of Haverhill. He died Jan. 23, 1670. 71. "Inventory of y^e estate of John Kingsberry, who died y^e 23^d day of y^e 11th m^o, 1670, in Haverhill. He was probably a weaver, as the inventory mentions "three Reeds with other things belonging to a weaving tread," also "A hous with an acker of land to it £24"—and "40 Ackers of Wilderness Land, £12." The widow married (2) Dec. 11, 1672, Peter Green, of Haverhill; she died Dec. 20, 1677.

21 Colonel John⁵ Kingsbury (Henry⁴, John³, John², Henry¹) was a merchant and ship-owner at Newburyport, but a few years before his death he removed to Maine, and was one of the founders of Pownalborough. He married at Newbury, June 5, 1739, Patience Tappan, born in Newbury April 20, 1720, daughter of Abraham Tappan and his wife, Esther, daughter of Rev. Michael Wigglesworth, author of the "Day of Doom." Colonel Kingsbury's military services were distinguished, especially in the winter campaigns at Lake George, in 1755-6 and 1756-7. Previously he had been a captain in the regiment of Col. John Greenleaf. Early in the season of 1755 the erection of a fort at Lake George was authorized. The French and the Indians were continually making inroads and devastations upon the settlers up and down the lakes, thus causing them to be a highway for the destruction of the English people. Colonel Moses Titcomb of Newbury led his Essex County regiment to that region, to join the army under the command of Lord Amherst. In an engagement, September 8, 1755, Colonel Titcomb was killed. During the summer it was known that warlike operations were imminent, and in August, 1755, a reinforcement was summoned, men being wanted who should not only render full military duty, but who could also construct vessels and storehouses. To this summons John Kingsbury and picked men from various military bodies of Essex county responded. These soldiers were also ship-carpenters. John Kingsbury is styled in the muster-rolls, Lieutenant-Colonel and Captain, aged thirty-eight years, and a resident in the town of his birth—Newbury. His service began Sept. 9, 1755, and continued until the following February, though some of his men were relieved a few weeks earlier. His company was attached to the regiment of Colonel Ichabod Plaisted. In one of the muster-rolls* he is styled "Colonel," with "a Company of Carpenters at Lake George," "Building vessels at the Lakes, storehouses, &c." His first term of service comprised "23 weeks and 5 days," and he was allowed "15 days travel from Albany." His company of carpenters was made up largely of Newbury, Ipswich, and Salisbury men. The flotilla which they assisted in constructing became famous in the annals of the French and Indian War. The two winter seasons at the lakes, doing nominal military duty, since the lakes were frozen, and active military operations well-nigh impossible, was a service which called for men skilled as well as patriotic. The "Reduction of Canada" was largely due to the splendid service of this "flotilla," which was constructed by men who were well informed both about military matters and ship-building. After his campaigns were over, Colonel Kingsbury returned to an active business life in Newbury, and also resumed his place in the Newbury train-band. In 1762 he removed to Pownalborough, where he became a very prominent citizen. At a special town meeting, held July 24, 1764, it was "voted to raise the sum of One Hundred Pounds L. M. to build a Town House, or a House for the Publick Worship of God & that a Committee be Chose for the Management of said Sum & that Job Avrill, John Decker & John Kingsbury Esq^r, be y^e Committee." He built the first two-storied house in that part of Pownalborough (now Wiscasset) where he lived. He died in Boston Aug. 22, 1764, where he had gone on business connected with building the meeting-house at Pownalborough. The following account of his death is from the Massachusetts Gazette, Thursday, Aug. 23, 1764: "Monday last arrived here Capt. Robert Hodge from Pownalborough at the Eastward, with whom came passenger John Kingsbury, Esq^r, who the same night was seiz'd with a Fit of Apoplexy and continued in a stupid frame till Yesterday Afternoon when he expir'd, being in the 47th Year of his Age. He was lately a Colonel in the Provincial Service to the Westward, and one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Lincoln; both of which Trusts he executed to the honor of himself and Benefit of the Community. His remains are to be interred This Afternoon, from Mrs. Maverick's at the North End." Mrs. Maverick lived in Union street, on the corner of Salt Lane nearest Dock Square.* His estate was administered upon Sept. 7, 1764, by his widow Patience. Inventory taken Nov. 21, 1764, by Benjamin Woodbridge of Newcastle, Michael Sevey and Jonathan Williamson, both of Pownalborough: £966: 16: 10. Mrs. Patience Kingsbury survived her husband many years, dying about 1792 at the residence of her son-in-law, Thomas Rice, Esq., in Wiscasset. She was buried in the Federal Street burying-ground, Wiscasset.

36 Hannah⁶ Kingsbury (John⁵, Henry⁴, John³, John², Henry¹), married in Newbury, March 24, 1757, Captain Timothy Pike, Jr., a descendant of Joseph and Susanna (Kingsbury) Pike. He was called captain because in early life he commanded a tender, a vessel which carried supplies to the army in the old French war, and it is the tradition that he was attached to that part of the army in which Col. Kingsbury was an officer. He became a manufacturer of scythes and other edged tools, and removed from Newbury to Falmouth (now Portland). In Willis's History of Portland, 336, it is stated that Mr. Pike was one of the sufferers from the burning of Falmouth by the British Oct. 18, 1775, and he was one of a committee who signed an address to the people of Ireland on that subject. Mrs. Hannah (Kingsbury) Pike died May 22, 1774, in Portland, and Mr. Pike married Oct. 18, 1774, a second wife, Elizabeth Jones, by whom he had several children. In 1785 he was one of the signers of a petition for the incorporation of the town of Portland. - 5 JOHN WARD, born in Wiscasset, March 13, 1815; married in Boston, June 29, 1853, Lydia, dau. of John Scotlow and Abigail (Emerson) Dean, born in Woburn, Mass., Sept. 5, 1826; they have no ch. Mr. Dean's schooling began in the district school of the village of Mount Vernon, when he was five years old, where he attended a man's school in winter and a woman's school in summer, as was then customary in small villages. His schooling ended with four months in the Portland High School. Then he learned the bookbinder's trade. In his boyhood Mr. Dean was very fond of reading, but he had very little opportunity for selection; he read Rogers' "Pleasures of Memory," Young's "Night-Thoughts," Thomson's "Seasons," and during his apprenticeship he purchased Aiken's "British Poets." After he went into the bookbinding trade he had books enough to read, and soon began to collect a library. In pursuit of his trade he came to Boston in 1835, and subsequently was in the employ of bookbinders in Providence, New York, and Philadelphia. In 1841 he went into the bookbinding business for himself in Providence, and subsequently in Boston. After a few years he confined his business to stamping and gilding, an enterprise which he successfully conducted until 1872. But the life of John Ward Dean has centered about the New England Historic Genealogical Society. To it he has given his best thought and his unwearied service. He has been a member since 1850, and a life-member since 1859; from 1855 to 1857 he was treasurer; from 1857 to 1858, recording secretary; from 1859 to 1862, corresponding secretary; director from 1855 to 1889; member of the council from 1892 until the present time; on the committee of publication since 1854; librarian from 1872 to 1889; the latter year he gave up his position and devoted himself to editing the Register, but was reappointed in 1892, and still holds the office; he has been editor of the New England Historic Genealogical Register since 1876, and before that date he was associate editor for several years, and from 1864 to 1876 a member of the club pledged to support the magazine. The value of his labors in connection with the Register cannot be overestimated. To him, more than to any one else, is due its success. The Register has stimulated research in fields which would otherwise have remained uninvestigated, and has made invaluable contributions to the history and genealogy of New England. The positions which he has held in the N. E. Historic Genealogical Society, and his intense interest in historical matters, have combined, with an accurate memory, to give Mr. Dean the vast fund of detailed historical knowledge which he has at easy command, and has been ready to share, in his modest and kindly way, with all who have sought his assistance. Indeed, he has often suggested the writing of a book which has proved a valuable addition to historical literature. All efforts to render the early history of our country more accessible to the general reader have enlisted Mr. Dean's heartiest support. He was one of the charter members of the Prince Society, organized in 1858, whose object was the publication of rare works in print or manuscript, relating to America, and he was also president for ten years. Space does not permit the mention of all the historical societies of which Mr. Dean is a member. More than twenty-five societies, not all confined to the United States, have placed his name on their rolls. In 1899 Dartmouth College recognized Mr. Dean's attainments, and honored him with the degree of A.M. Mr. Dean's writings have been mainly confined to short biographical sketches and some genealogical work. The sketch of "Henry Kingsbury and his Descendants," published by him in the Register of 1859, was the first attempt to print any account of the Kingsbury family. He wrote Memoirs of his ancestors, Rev. Nathaniel Ward, author of the "Simple Cobbler of Agawam," in 1868, and of Rev. Michael Wigglesworth, in 1871. Among his ancestors were also Governor Thomas Dudley, Henry Sewall, Mayor of Coventry, in England, and Rev. John Woodbridge, of Andover and Newbury. To sum up, it may fairly be said that Mr. Dean has done more to awaken an interest in careful research into the early history of New England than almost any other man. [Condensed from a sketch of Mr. Dean, by Ruth Wood Hoag, A.B., in the Genealogical Advertiser, Dec., 1899, II., 97-104.]

75 Captain Henry^s Kingsbury (Samuel^r, John^s, John^s, Henry^a, John^s, John^s, Henry^a), of Bath, Maine, married, Nov. 14, 1838, Nancy Pike, daughter of Benjamin W. and Martha (Pike) Lowell, born in Salisbury, Mass., March 28, 1817. When about eleven years old he was placed in the care of Captain Reuben Osgood of Salisbury Point, while running a vessel between Salisbury and the coast of Maine. From a cabin boy he advanced to second and first mate of several ships, all the while studying thoroughly the system of navigation, and fitting himself for the position he sought, that of captain of a merchant vessel. He was finally placed in charge of a ship belonging to Caleb Cushing, and sailed out of Newburyport on several voyages to foreign parts, seeing service on the ocean for twenty-four years. In 1846 he entered the West India goods trade at Salisbury Point, in company with Robert Fowler. The firm continued for several years, when Captain Kingsbury purchased Fowler's interest at Salisbury Point, and largely increased the business, adding coal supply, purchasing coal by the ship load. He constructed coal sheds and was the pioneer in this branch of trade, and at one time he was one of the wealthiest men of the town, and active in advancing its interests; but reverses of fortune followed to some extent, and he retired from active business life. Captain Kingsbury was the oldest member of the Powow River Lodge of Odd Fellows at the time of his death. His wife died Sept. 3, 1888. He died in Salisbury Point, Amesbury, Aug. 6, 1890.

JAMES KINGSBURY OF PLAINFIELD.

IV James² Kingsbury (Henry¹), married, at Haverhill, January 6, 1673, Sarah, daughter of Matthias and Lettyce Button, of Haverhill, born in 1650, sister of his brother John's wife. He removed before 1699 to Plainfield, Conn. This tract of land was bought by Governor John Winthrop, Jun^r., of Allumps, the Indian Sachem, and the purchase was confirmed by Charles II., so apparently James Kingsbury was still keeping to the family tradition in going where the Winthrops went. But the land was also claimed by Owaneco, Sachem of Mohegan, and he made grants, and sold portions of it to various individuals, notably Major Fitch, and the Gallups. After the election of Fitz John Winthrop as Governor of Connecticut in 1698, his request for the confirmation of his Quinebaug lands received due consideration from the General Assembly. In May, 1699, the inhabitants east and west of Quinebaug river presented to the General Court a petition that their settlement be made a township, and that the land be laid out in accordance "with our Honorable Governor's claim," and that the Assembly would appoint Captain Wetherell, Mr. Pitkin, and Mr. Ely, to inquire into the legal proceedings, "and inform the weak and feeble that they may have a more speedy and peaceable settlement, so that we may have the worship of God among us." James Kingsbury was one of the petitioners. He also signed a petition, Nov. 13, 1699, that the town might be incorporated, and that they might have "an able, faithful, orthodox gospel minister, so that the sure worship of God may be at all times upheld and maintained amongst us."* In Oct., 1700, the General Assembly authorized Fitz John Winthrop to name the new plantation at Quinebaug. James Kingsbury's land was in the fourth division, abutting north on Moosup river, and he was one of the patentees named in the Plainfield patent, Dec. 17, 1706, granted by the Colony of Connecticut. James Kingsbury conveyed to Ephraim Kingsbury, of Plainfield, all his

Soon after 1740 he conformed to the Church of England, and for a number of years he officiated as a lay reader to the Episcopalians in Litchfield, entertaining until at least as late as 1747 a design of crossing the Atlantic to obtain holy orders; his fear of the dangers of the sea, however, prevented the accomplishment of this purpose. He seems to have spent his life mainly as a school-teacher. About 1767 he was one of the prominent settlers of Claremont, N. H.; justice of the peace; town clerk, 1771, 1772, 1773; in 1769 he received, from the Venerable Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, the appointment of Catechist and Schoolmaster at that place, with an annual stipend of £15. He conducted the services of the Church of England there until the arrival of an ordained clergyman in 1773. At the outbreak of the Revolution his sympathies were with the British. He died in Claremont, Oct. 19, 1777, in his 67th year. He married Mary Dean, at Stratford, Conn., April 6, 1753. She was probably Mary Brown, the widow of Rev. Barzilla Dean (Y. C. 1737). He was appointed on a committee of the General Assembly in May, 1733, to select a place for a meeting-house in the new Society formed from Canterbury, Pomfret, and Mortlake.

March 2, 1774, he was chosen a Selectman of Westmoreland, and Surveyor of Highways. Aug. 26, 1776, Congress commissioned Samuel Ransom to be Captain of a company raised for the defense of Westmoreland. This was known as the Second Independent Company for the Revolutionary service, and was attached to the Connecticut line. They joined the Continental army at Morristown, N. J., in January, 1777, and were engaged in the battles of Millstone, Brandywine, Germantown, Bound Brook, and Mud Fort, and in other lesser engagements. In June, 1778, Captain Ransom resigned to go to his home and defend it against the British and Indians under Col. John Butler. He reached Forty Fort on the morning of the massacre, July 3, 1778, and reported to Col. Zebulon Butler, the American commander, as a volunteer aide. He fully sustained his reputation as a cool and fearless soldier, and was killed in the heat of the fight. His house was burned, and his family fled down the valley with the other refugees. After the advance of Sullivan's army the family returned and occupied their land, only to become involved in the troubles growing out of the struggle for the ownership of the valley between the Connecticut and Pennsylvania authorities. In Nov. 1783, Mrs. Ransom and her daughters were, in the most inhuman manner, turned out of their house in a cold and bitter storm to seek shelter as best they might, by the Pennsylvanians. 177 Molly⁶ Kingsbury (Stephen⁵, John⁴, Ephraim³, James², Henry¹), m. Dr. Luman Pettibone, born in Norfolk, Conn., July 10, 1766, son of Lieut. Samuel and Martha (Phelps) Pettibone; he studied medicine with Dr. Ephraim Guiteau, of Norfolk, and after two or three years' practice there he went to Orwell, Vt. After ten years in Orwell he removed to Stockholm, N. Y. At that time (1802) Stockholm was a frontier settlement. The nearest white neighbors on the east were at Malone, 33 miles away, and on the west at Canton, 20 miles away.* Dr. Pettibone took 320 acres of land, and built two log houses, about 20 x 30, with a "space" of 6 or 8 feet between them, which was roofed over. In these houses not a board was used. The floors were made of split bass-wood, and the doors were of rived cedar shingles, hung upon wooden hinges, with a wooden latch and a leather string. The family raised flax and hemp and their own wool, to be made into cloth upon the loom in the west building, or kitchen. In summer time the boys wore only tow frocks and trousers, going barefoot, and generally bareheaded. They made their entire supply of sugar from the maple sap, and raised for breadstuff all the wheat, rye, and corn that was used. At first the grain was pounded in a hollow stump, with a primitive pestle attached to a bent sapling. The nearest grist mill was forty miles away. In the earliest days they "slashed" the trees, and burned over pieces of land, then took a hoe and buried the seed corn, and the crop was not again touched until harvest time. In 1806 or 7 Dr. Pettibone built the first frame building in the town, and in this structure the first church in Stockholm was organized, (Congregational,) with seven members, by Rev. Amos Pettengill, a missionary sent out by the Connecticut Missionary Society. The first school in

* It is stated that "Lezner" Tarbell, an Indian chief, and other Tarbells, frequently came to the home of Dr. Pettibone to see his wife, their "cousin," and that they were related to the Kingsburys. Lezner was accustomed to sleep on the kitchen floor, and could not be induced to get into a bed. He was a son of one of the three Tarbell children who were carried off June 20, 1707, by the Indians from Groton, Mass., while picking cherries one evening—so tradition says—being captured before they had time to get down from the trees. They were taken to Canada, and the boys remained with their captors at Caughnawaga. They were children of Thomas and Elizabeth (Blood) Tarbell, and were probably related to the Kingsburys through the Whitneys. (See p. 115.) Governor Hutchinson met them near Albany in 1744 when they had become important men and chiefs. With their families, and others of the tribe, they established the village of St. Regis, on the St. Lawrence. Their descendants were also chiefs, and one of them was a scholar in Wheelock's Charity School, at Hanover, N. H. K., of Alliance, in 1880. He remained in Burlington hospital until the close of the war, and was honorably discharged. He is said to have been a Quaker, but I should judge that was a mistake, as he would hardly have served in the army if that had been the case. His wife was a decided Quaker, and dressed accordingly.

* According to another account, Nov. 30, 1825.

of his graduation, having already fixed upon teaching as his chosen profession, he became associated with Mr. G. A. Dewitt, in the instruction and management of the Providence High School. At the end of two years he commenced the "Young Ladies' High School," at the solicitation of many leading citizens of Providence, who had long felt the need of such an establishment for the education of their daughters. The new school, both in its instruction and in all its appointments, was of a higher grade than had been before known in Providence. This school he maintained with unexampled prosperity for thirty years, during which time he superintended the education of two generations of a large proportion of the foremost women of Providence, and of many from abroad. He retired from his long and successful work in 1858. At that time he received from the Governor the appointment of State Commissioner of Public Schools; but he held this position but a single year, not finding its duties, as then arranged, compatible with his health. He resigned in 1859, and was immediately made President of the Washington Insurance Company, an office which he continued to hold until his death. This record embraces but a small part of the work which Mr. Kingsbury performed for the benefit of the community. Though the founder and instructor of a private school on which he depended for his living, he was, from the beginning, one of the most earnest and active friends and promoters of public education. He aided largely in bringing public opinion to sanction and demand the legislation by which the present common schools of Rhode Island were created. He was the most active founder and long the President of the "Rhode Island Institute of Instruction," which did so much to sustain the labors of Mr. Barnard, the first Commissioner of the Rhode Island State schools, and in a great variety of ways he rendered services which, possibly, no other man among us at that time would have been able to render. In the promotion of the general cause of education he also assisted in founding the "American Institute of Instruction," that national association of teachers, which has contributed so largely to the elevation of the profession throughout the country. He was the President of this organization for two years, and for more than twenty years one of its councillors and managers.

With the social interests and many of the philanthropic and religious institutions of Providence Mr. Kingsbury was closely identified. In the early scientific pursuits of the "Franklin Society" he took a leading part, and was for several years President. He was for many years at the head of the "Young Men's Bible Society"; and he was also for twenty years one of the trustees of the "Butler Hospital for the Insane." In 1844 he was chosen a member of the Board of Trustees of Brown University, and in this capacity he rendered most useful services to his Alma Mater. In 1853 he was raised to the Board of Fellows, and at the same time was chosen Secretary of the Corporation, an office which he continued to hold to the close of his life. In recognition of his various and eminent services in the cause of education, the University, in 1856, conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

He was one of the founders of the Central Congregational Church, in 1851, having previously belonged to the Richmond Street Congregational Church, and in connection with both of these churches he maintained Bible classes, which embraced not only large numbers of young men of the city, but first and last, upwards of two hundred students of the University. This record is condensed from an account which appeared in the Providence Journal, of Dec. 25, 1874, written by Professor Gammell, of Brown University. He says finally: "It is services such as these, generously and quietly rendered to so many of the most important social and religious interests of the community, that have ennobled the career which we have thus imperfectly sketched. . . . Mr. Kingsbury has furnished an illustrious example of how much even the busiest among us may do in a most unostentatious way to make others wiser and better, and to render the community a more desirable home for the generations which are to come after them."

In 1860 he was a member of the Republican presidential convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln, and he took an active part in the canvass which followed. In the very first week of the war he enlisted as a private in Co. L, Third Massachusetts Regiment, and at Fortress Monroe he had charge of the contrabands under General Butler. In 1862 Mr. Pierce was appointed by Secretary Chase to take charge of the freedmen and the plantations of the Sea Islands of South Carolina. In August, 1863, while on duty at Morris Island, he was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third Massachusetts District, and District Attorney for the same District. In 1869 he was appointed Secretary of the Board of State Charities, and held that position until 1874, when he resigned. He was a member of the National Republican Conventions of 1876 and 1884. He was elected a member of the Massachusetts Legislature, House of Representatives, in 1875 and 1876, and again in 1896, and held the office at the time of his death, Sept. 7, 1897, in Paris, France. During all his life, even while he was in college, Mr. Pierce did much literary work, frequently contributing to the Atlantic Monthly. He published in 1857 a book on "American Railroad Law," which is still the standard authority on the subject. But his most important work was the "Memoir of Charles Sumner," in four volumes, 1877-1896. He also compiled a "Genealogy of the Pierce Family." His wife died March 30, 1880, and he married a second time.

Y. The following is taken from the "Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States." "In memoriam, Captain Ezra Wolcott Kingsbury, died at Chicago, Illinois, February 9, 1902." "In May, 1862, he was appointed by the Governor of Colorado to assist in organizing and recruiting the Third Colorado Infantry. In October of that year he was commissioned First Lieutenant, and subsequently Captain. Thereafter the regiment was consolidated with the Second Colorado Infantry, and became the Second Colorado Cavalry, in October, 1863. Our companion was commissioned as Captain of Company I, Second Cavalry, and was mustered in January 12, 1863. He was mustered out of the service, August, 1865. He served in Missouri and Arkansas, and participated in the campaign which resulted in the defeat and capture of Jeff Thompson, and in the battle of Prairie Grove, as volunteer aide on General Blunt's staff, when he was wounded. Subsequently he participated in actions at Little Blue, Washport, Mine Creek, and Newtonia, where he was again wounded. Then he was sent to Fort Riley, Kansas, for Indian service, where he remained until mustered out. Our honored companion came out with wounds and shattered health, but no price counted in dollars would have bought from him his scars. He was a genial gentleman, a welcome and honored companion in our Order, sociable, unobtrusive, helpful to those who needed help. He was as good a member of our Order as he was a soldier, and nothing more could be said." He held in Chicago the position of General Storekeeper for the U. S. Government.

THOMAS KINGSBURY OF PLAINFIELD.

VI. Thomas^s Kingsbury (Henry^l), of Haverhill, married (1) June 29, 1691, Deborah, daughter of George and Joanna (Davis) Corliss, born June 6, 1655, widow of Thomas Eastman, who died April 29, 1688; (2) January 19, 1702/3, Sarah, daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Moulton) Haynes, of Haverhill. He served in King Philip's War in 1676, in Lieut Benjamin Sweet's company, and in other Indian wars, and received land on the Saco River, probably as a bounty. After the massacre of 1696/7 both Joseph Kingsbury and Thomas Kingsbury were in the garrison commanded by Thomas Dustin in his brick house. Deacon Joseph Kingsbury was one of the claimants of land in Narragansett, Township No. 1, now Buxton, Me., on account of services of Thomas Kingsbury. He appears by the Haverhill records to have been one of the committee to seat the meeting-house in 1699-1700, and to have received six shillings for compensation. In 1698 he promised to cut and carry to Mr. Rolfe, the minister, two quarters of a cord of wood; he affixed his name, with others, to an agreement promising to attend meeting in a certain new house of worship, when the glass should be put in. His children were killed in the Indian attack on Haverhill in 1697, and at a later period he appears to have been taken captive and carried away by the Indians, and kept by them for a long time. According to Pike's Journal, Sergeant Kingsbury was killed or taken by the Indians July 3, 1706. Probably this Thomas. After his return he appears in Plainfield, Connecticut, where a tract of land was given him by the proprietors. The deed is as follows:

Whereas thro' the Goodnes of God Thomas Kingsbury is returned from a Long Captivity, and is now providentially Cast amongst us, and where as that he hath Lost most wth he had by the enemies, we the subscribers Look upon it our Duty to extend an act of Charity to him and that he maye have wherewith all to Live comfortably amongst us

He died in Plainfield, June 11, 1720, leaving a will which is on the Windham Probate Records, dated June 29 (sic), 1720, proved Aug. 5, 1720. He makes bequests to his wife, to “beloved Cozen, Thomas Kingsbury, my Brother Thomas [Thomas should be Samuel] Kingsbury’s son of Haveril, Mass., all the land and buildings where I now dwell”; “cousin Bartholomew Heath, who lives with me, and to continue to live with my wife.” Hannah, daughter of Jonathan Haynes, married Dec. 16, 1697, John Heath, of Haverhill, afterwards of Norwich. Their son, Bartholomew, was born April 1, 1709, in Haverhill. The widow, Sarah Kingsbury, married William Corbett, of Lebanon, Conn.†

JOSEPH KINGSBURY OF NORWICH WEST FARMS.

VII. Lieutenant Joseph² Kingsbury (*Henry*¹), of Haverhill, took the oath of allegiance, Nov. 28, 1677; married, April 2, 1679, Love, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Hutchins) Ayer, of Haverhill, born April 15, 1663. March 2, 1702/3, Sergeant Joseph Kingsbury was chosen constable for the west part of Haverhill, Richard Whittier for the east part; tithing-man, March 4, 1700/01; selectman, March, 1697/98; 1699/1700; 1701/2; 1705/6; viewer of fences from the Mill brook westward to the Westbridge river, and northward. He appears to have been a surveyor, as September 17, 1685, he testifies that he and William Neff were desired by Thomas Woodbery and Josiah Beason to measure "a certayne parcell of upland and meadow" in Ipswich, for them, and "y^e measure or work above named wee did according to o^r best skill and judgment." May 12, 1702, the Town by vote made choice of Serg^t Joseph Kingsbury to appear at the next inferior court, to be holden at Salem on the last Tuesday of June next, on the behalf of the Town of Haverhill, to answer the said Town's presentment for not being provided with a school master according to law. He was bookkeeper for Capt. Simon Wainwright, a merchant in Haverhill, when Capt. W. was killed by the Indians, and his house burned, in 1708. This event seems to have made Kingsbury feel that a place more distant from Indian attacks would be more desirable as a residence, and later in the year he removed with his family to Norwich, Conn., leaving Haverhill June 14, 1708. He settled in that part of Norwich then called the West Farms, now Franklin, and erected his dwelling upon Middle or Center Hill, a domain that continued in the name of Kingsbury until 1870, when it was bought by John G. Cooley, of New York, for his son, who had married a daughter of Col. Thomas H. C. Kingsbury. Joseph Kingsbury was chairman of the meeting at which the ecclesiastical society of the West Farms was organized, in 1716, and one of the eight pillars of the Church. He and his son Joseph were among the eight men who drew up the covenant of the Church, in 1718. He and his wife, Mrs. Love Kingsbury, were admitted to the Church by letter, January 4, 1718, and he was one of the first two Deacons of the Church, chosen October 8, 1718. He was appointed Ensign of the trainband in the West Society in Norwich, in 1719, and Lieutenant in October, 1727. His wife died April 24, 1735. He died April 9, 1741.*

In his will Deacon Joseph Kingsbury mentions: "Loving and faithfull wife, Ruth," son Ephraim, to have thirteen acres of "my thirty-acre lot in Coventry, which is adjoining to my son Ebenezer's land;" son Joseph to have half of his land in Bolton; also gives him £7 10^s if "he brings his son Sanford up to Learning, so farr as that his said Son takes his first Degree"; son Ebenezer to have the remainder of the Coventry land; son Nathaniel to have his Dwelling House, Barn, &c., in Norwich; son Daniel, land in Norwich; four daughters, viz.: Hannah Hide, Love Backus, Ruth Edgerton, and Tallathy Waldow, "five Good Milld Dollars to each Daughter." Minister of s^d Society," then to be divided among his children; dated February 3, 1757. Norwich Probate Records, II, 261. Joseph Kingsbury owned at least two slaves, Cuff and Phillis, and he bequeathed them to his wife, Ruth. She gave them their freedom in Dec., 1773. The two ex-slaves removed to Tolland, and after about twenty years they were reduced to want, and the Town of Tolland brought a suit against Ebenezer Kingsbury, his mother's executor, to make him support them, under the statute requiring all masters, or owners, who set slaves at liberty to provide for their support if they should come to want. (See Kingsbury v. Tolland, Connecticut Reports, 2 Root, 355.) The Town won the suit, but some one remarked that the Kingsburys were as numerous as the sands of the sea, and it would be impossible to recover from the executor. It is stated in the testimony that Ruth left a clear estate of the value of £500 lawful money.

(See above.) This would seem to point to an unfortunate marriage and divorce, and the assuming of her maiden name, as an illegitimate connection would hardly have been spread on the record so fully.

694 Captain Ebenezer¹ Kingsbury (Joseph², Joseph², Henry¹), of Coventry, Conn.; married, November 28, 1743, Priscilla, daughter of his uncle, Nathaniel Kingsbury. (She is said to have read the Bible through before marrying, to see if there was anything to forbid marrying a cousin.) He was admitted to the Church in Bolton, November 24, 1739. He was a Deacon in the Church, and a much valued citizen; representative to the General Assembly, 1754-55-58-59-64-66-67-69-71-72-73-74-75-76-77-78-79-80; Lieutenant of the Ninth Company or Trainband in the Fifth Regiment of the Colony, May, 1753; Captain, October, 1756. He was chosen a member of the Committee of Correspondence in Coventry, September 15, 1774. The story is told that during a critical period of the Revolution he returned from the session of the General Assembly one Saturday to work for the soldiers. His daughter, Priscilla, moulded bullets from the lead clock weights, and his son, Joseph, made and baked biscuits — both on the Sabbath. Sand bags were substituted for lead in the family clock, and on Monday he returned to his post of duty, his saddle bags balanced on the one side with food for the soldiers, and on the other with bullets to be used against their enemies.* Deacon Ebenezer Kingsbury died in Coventry, September 6, 1800, in the 84th year of his age [T. S.]. Priscilla, his wife, died January 31, 1805, aged 82. [Mrs. Priscilla, consort of Deacon Ebenezer Kingsbury, died January 31, 1805, in the 83d year of her age, T. S., Coventry].

† If Martha Kingsbury was beloved by Nathan Hale, the "Martyr Spy," as is asserted, the hero must have been a fickle sweetheart, for it is well known that he was betrothed at the time of his death to Alice Adams of Canterbury, widow of Elijah Ripley, her mother having married Hale's father as his second wife. Alice and Hale were in love with each other when she was very young, but the match was CHILDREN.

- 1 JABEZ, born Jan. 23, 1741/2; m. April 4, 1764. Deborah Fanning; died Feb. 20, 1770, in Bozrah. The Rev. Azel Backus, D.D., first President of Hamilton College, was his son. He was born at West Farms, Oct. 13, 1765; grad. Yale College, 1787; was for twenty years pastor of the Church at Bethlehem, Conn. Soon after his settlement there he opened a school with special reference to preparing young men for college. This school was very successful, and many of his pupils became distinguished in both Church and State; elected in Sept., 1812, first President of Hamilton College, at Clinton, N. Y. His long experience in the instruction of youth was of great assistance to him as head of the infant college, and under his wise supervision the institution prospered greatly; while yet in the full vigor of his powers he died there Dec. 9, 1817; m. Feb. 7, 1791, Melicent, dau. of Josiah Deming, of Wethersfield, Conn., bapt. Jan. 19, 1766. She died Oct. 23, 1853. A number of Dr. Backus's sermons were published.* He was a man of an original cast of thought, distinguished by susceptibility and ardor of feeling; was possessed, withal, of brilliant talents. Duyckinck remarks that "his biography remains to be written in a manner worthy of the part which he sustained in caring for the wants of a college among the pioneers."
- 2 JOSHUA, born Oct. 12, 1743; m. Nov. 19, 1778, Hannah Calkins, born Nov. 16, 1755, daughter of William and Mary (Prentice) Calkins. (Went to Ohio?)

- 5 CHARLES, born Oct. 25, 1749; grad. Yale College, 1769. He was instructed in theology by the Rev. Dr. Hart, of Preston. He was ordained pastor of the Church in Somers, Aug. 10, 1774;

*Yours affectionate Friend and humble Servt

besides discharging with remarkable fidelity the duties of a parish minister, he received many young men into his family for the purpose of preparing them for college and for the ministry. Nearly fifty enjoyed the benefit of his instructions. Among them were Dr. Leonard Woods, of Andover, Mass., Dr. Hyde, of Lee, Dr. Cooley, of Granville, Dr. Snell, of Brookfield, President Moore, of Amherst College, President Davis, of Hamilton College, his nephew, Dr. Azel Backus, and many others who attained distinction. His high reputation as a theologian procured for him invitations to occupy the Chair of Theology in two Colleges — Dartmouth and Yale, but in both cases he declined, partly because he could not persuade himself that he possessed the requisite qualifications, and partly because he was too far advanced in life to wish to make so great a change. Dr. Timothy Dwight, President of Yale College, and one of his classmates, renders a most affectionate tribute to the memory of Dr. Backus, in his Travels in New England and New York, II., 274-8, and says that as a preacher "he was calm, affectionate, solemn, interesting, and persuasive. His style and elocution were artless, manly, and pleasing, and his reputation placed him in the first class of divines." In 1801 he received the degree of D.D. from Williams College. He married, 1775, at Franklin, Bethiah, dau. of Jacob and Sarah (Palmer) Hill, of Cambridge, Mass., bapt. Oct. 14, 1744; died May 25, 1835. He died in Somers, Dec. 30, 1803. Many of his sermons were published.* His only child, Jabez, died suddenly, while a student at Yale College, March 16, 1794, in his 17th year.

- 6 EUNICE, born 1751; m. May 14, 1767, Capt. James Hyde, son of Capt. Matthew and Elizabeth (Huntington) Hyde, of Franklin; she died March 9, 1778.

Dr. Charles Backus of Somers, he entered Yale College in 1784; graduated 1788; studied theology with Dr. Levi Hart of Preston and also with Rev. Dr. Perkins, of West Hartford. Ordained pastor of the Congregational church in West Suffield, May 24, 1792; this charge he resigned in 1809, removing to Cambridgeport, Mass., for two years; then, in 1811, to Rhode Island under the patronage of the Evangelical Missionary Society; afterwards to Harvard, Mass., and finally to Exeter, Conn., where he remained from 1823 to 1834. His home was at Geddes from 1846 to 1856, and subsequently at Syracuse. One of the most noteworthy events of his life was his election as Chaplain of Congress, December 12, 1856, and again in 1857 when he was 94 and 95 years old. His faculties were unimpaired throughout his long life, and his last sermon was preached after he entered on his 102d year. He died in Syracuse, N. Y., July 30, 1864, aged 101 yrs. 10 mos. 20 days. 701 Nathaniel¹ Kingsbury (Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), of the West Farms, now Franklin, Conn.; married September 4, 1755, Sarah, daughter of Jacob and Susanna (Hancock)* Hill, of Cambridge, Mass., baptized August 25, 1734. He died December 15, 1784, in Franklin; his widow died October (21, T. S.), (23, Ch. Rec.), (23, T. R.), 1789, in the 55th year of her age.

"The following traits in his character were too visible to escape the notice of his acquaintance. He had a soul which was above the low arts of dissimulation; he was steady in his principles; upright in his dealings; a feeling, a decided, and a generous friend to the needy, the helpless, and the afflicted. These qualities, united with a large share of sprightliness and humor, rendered him beloved as a companion and highly esteemed as a member of society. He was the youngest son and child of Deacon Joseph Kingsbury, whose grandfather came out of England, and was one of the first settlers of the Town of Ipswich. He removed with his family from Haverhill, in the Province (now Commonwealth) of Massachusetts, near the beginning of the present century, and settled in the west part of Norwich, lately incorporated into a town, by the name of Franklin. Haverhill was at that time a frontier town and was frequently harrassed by incursions of the Eastern and Northern tribes of Indians, which occasioned Deacon Kingsbury's removal. He had a large family, six sons and five daughters, who lived to marry and have children.

"Mr. Kingsbury and his wife, with five of their Children, died of a Consumption. More than forty of his relatives died of the same disorder, within thirty-eight years from the last date. The curious will find it difficult to investigate the causes, in a family remarkable for their attachment to the agricultural life, from their first settlement in America, and who have lived in the common temperate style of New England farmers."—*Remarks by the Rev. Charles Backus, D.D., in a note to the Funeral Sermon for Bethiah Kingsbury.

 758 NATHANIEL, born in Franklin, April 17, 1760; died unmarried, Dec. 8, 1784, in Franklin. He is probably the Nathaniel Kingsbury of Norwich, who served in Colonel Canfield's Militia Regiment at West Point in September, 1781.—Connecticut Men in the Revolution, 580.

*Rev. Lavius Hyde states that the famous Rev. Dr. Charles Backus, of Somers, was brought up in this family. Rev. Dr. Backus himself says in the same sermon: "Related to him as nephew, and educated in the same house in which he lived, I should be unnatural not to take part in the mourning caused by his death. But there were much stronger ties than these circumstances afford, to engage my affections to him. Being left an orphan in my childhood, I was taken under his guardianship, and by his generous exertions received a public education. His paternal care was continued to me during his life."

sketch of the family is given in a sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Arnold of Alstead. The following is extracted from the notice of Absalom Kingsbury: "A remarkable providence occurred about the year 1772, by which, his barn was nearly divided into two parts. While two men were unloading grain, a violent wind prostrating much timber, brought one large tree directly across the top of the barn near the center, and breaking away the timbers before it with a tremendous crash, the top fell in not far from the men at work, but neither they nor the oxen were injured, although the barn was almost ruined." His wife died August 14, 1777, in the 45th year of her age; and he married (2) Mrs. Abigail Wilson, born Holbrook, of East Alstead. (Alstead Town Records.) He died April 30, 1805. He married January 9, 1766, Elizabeth, daughter of Captain John and Alice (Fitch) Fitch, of Windham, born October 4, 1743. After his marriage he settled in that part of Windham called Scotland. He removed to Claremont, N. H., about 1780. He was appointed Second Lieutenant by the General Assembly in 1776; appointed Captain in the Third Battalion of State Troops, November, 1776; was on the staff first of General Spencer, then of General Sullivan, and Lieutenant-Colonel. He was author of the Muster Roll, adopted by Congress; subsequently he was appointed Muster Master for the Connecticut troops; also Major of the Fort at Ticonderoga until the war was over. In the summer of 1781 he served on the northern frontier, under command of General Enos. The regiment was engaged in scouting on the west side of the Connecticut. The English Government had granted 100,000 acres of land on the Island of Cape Breton to 100 citizens of Claremont (presumably for services in the Old French War). He was appointed an agent for the others to go to Cape Breton and survey and divide the land among its grantees. He accordingly went, and laid out the city of Mira, at the head of navigation on Mira river. About the time he completed this survey he and his men were arrested and imprisoned, in order to make them swear allegiance to the King of England. Though his men took the oath, he refused, and was kept still longer in prison, but, remaining obdurate, was finally released.

Sanford Kingsbury held the offices of Justice of the Peace, State Senator, Conncillor, Representative to Convention for forming a State Constitution, and was prominent in town affairs. Afterwards he joined the regiment of Col. Huntington, as a private soldier at Camp Connecticut on the Hudson, having procured the money to buy an outfit by going on a privateering expedition from New London in the schooner "Spy," from May 8 to September 26, 1777.* He carried a gun only a few weeks when Col. Huntington appointed him an orderly. He was a man who apparently never thought much of what he had done, for although he lived an eventful life, during a long and important period, after it was over very few records of his life in detail had been preserved. He was commissioned Ensign April 26, 1780, and marched to Virginia with the picked body of men chosen by the Marquis de Lafayette for the southern campaign. At the close of the war he was promoted to a Lieutenancy, and assigned to the western army, where he continued uninterruptedly for fourteen years. During the last nine years of this period, to use his own words, he was "not absent from military duty one hour." This frontier service in those days of ambuscade and massacres, when the posts were weak and widely separated, but the foe numerous and ever on the alert, was one of the greatest toil and danger. He here received the well earned promotion of Captain and Major. He distinguished himself by defending Fort Harmar with a small number of men against a large body of Indians. An account of this exploit is to be found in the history of Ohio.* The following General Order bears witness to the soldierly qualities of Lieut. Kingsbury, and well illustrates the exigencies of the early border service :

FORT WASHINGTON, 14th January, 1791.

EXTRACT FROM GENERAL ORDERS :

The General is highly pleased with the cool and spirited conduct displayed by Lieut. Kingsbury in repulsing a body of about 300 savages, who surrounded Dunlap's station on Monday morning last and besieged it, endeavoring to set it on fire with their arrows, and keeping up a heavy fire against his small party for the space of twenty-five hours. . . . This spirited defence made by Lieut. Kingsbury, with so small a force as 35 men total, old and young, sick and well, and in such bad works, reflects the greatest credit upon him and his party. The General returns his thanks to him, and directs that the Adjutant transmit him a copy of these orders by the first conveyance.

JOS. HARMAR, Brig.-General.

There is a letter extant which he wrote to his brother from Cincinnati, saying that he knew he ought to go East to attend to some of his business affairs connected with his father's estate, but that he could only get six months leave of absence, which would only give him time to go and return without having any time for business. His route home was via New Orleans; and this was not far from 1800.

In 1799, he returned to Connecticut upon a furlough, where he spent the two following years in the recruiting service. He married November 24, 1799, Sarah Palmer, daughter of Dr. Benjamin and Rosanna (Thayer) Ellis, of Franklin, born June 17, 1774 (1778, V. S.). Miss Ellis was a person of intelligence, refinement, force, and dignity, all of which characteristics were called in requisition by her subsequent experience. In 1802, he was again ordered to the frontier, and stationed among the Creek Indians in Georgia. Towards the close of the following year he was appointed

Lieutenant-Colonel, and transferred to the Western army, and stationed at Mackinaw, whence he was shortly transferred to the southwest, where he remained for several years, living at Bellefontaine at the mouth of the Missouri river, and at Fort Adams on the Mississippi, and in 1809 became Colonel of the First Infantry. His services in the southwest covered the years in which Aaron Burr figured largely in that section. Burr called several times at the headquarters of Col. Kingsbury, and was evidently anxious to enlist his sympathies. But the two never met. Col. Kingsbury regarded him with suspicion, and was unwilling to compromise his own honor by intercourse with him. During the time of Burr's scheme for getting possession of Louisiana, Major Kingsbury was in command at New Orleans. He had occasion to visit some of the posts on the river above. He knew something of what was going on, and he did not know whom he could trust. He laid the whole scheme before his wife, and virtually put her in command of the fort. Of course the next officer must be left in nominal command, but his wife was to watch, and at all hazards, in case of an uprising, to prevent the conspirators from getting possession of the fort. Fortunately there was no necessity for action, but she kept his counsel and was ready for any emergency. Very early in the war of 1812, Col. Kingsbury was stationed at Detroit, and, as he once stated to the writer, was offered the command at that post which subsequently devolved upon Gen. Hull, but an attack of illness, and his own distrust of the plans of the administration, gave him an excuse for declining. He always said that no man could have avoided surrender under the circumstances, and that Hull was made a scapegoat of to shield a weak war administration. At one time he conducted an expedition or transfer of troops from Detroit to the Mississippi, going through Lakes Huron and Michigan to the Chicago river, up that as far as practicable, then making a carry of a few miles to the Desplaines, one of the tributaries of the Illinois, and so on to the Mississippi. In a letter speaking of this trip he says the position of Chicago is a commanding one, and time will see here a great city. During the latter part of the war of 1812 he had charge of the forts at New London and Newport, and was appointed

George Washington President.

Inspector-General of the Eastern Division of the Army, in which capacity he served till the close of the war, when he retired, having been forty years in commission in the military service of his country.

At the close of the war he was retired and spent the remainder of his life at his home in Franklin, where he had an estate of about 400 acres that had been in the family since 1707, when Joseph Kingsbury went there from Haverhill.

He was a man of most genial, kindly nature, with a liberal heart and an open hand, and was held in high esteem by all his neighbors. The writer remembers his visits as a boy to the old place, Kingsbury Hill. The free hospitality of the house, the retainers that seemed to be about the kitchen, barn, or yard, ready to hold horses, run of errands, or do nothing; and apparently equally well pleased with either. It was an ideal place for a boy.

Col. Kingsbury was a man of unswerving honor and integrity, and followed unflinchingly the path of duty. These qualities were strikingly exemplified throughout the nearly fifty years of his military life, and won for him universal respect and esteem. In the Senate of the United States, in January, 1828, Gen. William H. Harrison, subsequently president, said, "The first captain under whom I served, Col. Kingsbury of Connecticut, than whom Sparta nor Rome never produced a better soldier, informed me that he joined General Washington's army with a portmanteau filled with clothing, which becoming the common property of his brother officers, the stock was soon so reduced that the portmanteau was dispensed with, and the remains of his wardrobe carried in the knapsack of a soldier." He was a member of the Order of the Cincinnati. He died in Franklin, July 1, 1837. His wife died December 16, 1857. [F. J. Kingsbury.]

He was but 18 years old and had never been twenty miles away from home. He soon, however, developed into a soldier, and was a favorite with the officers and men. After a short term of recruiting service at Warrenton, Va., he joined his regiment in Florida during the Seminole war, and after seeing some service in the Everglades, he died the following year, June 9, 1837, of fever, at Fort Mellen, Florida. A camp in Florida was named in his honor, and for some years the locality retained the name. News of his death reached home in Franklin some days before the death of his father, which took place July 1, 1837; but his father was then quite feeble and he was not told of the event and died without the knowledge that his son had preceded him. Her brother, Jacob, afterwards married a daughter of Dr. Ellis by a former marriage. He was a son of Rev. John and Bethiah Ellis, born at West Farms, in 1752. He died October 29, 1825. After graduation he went to Waterbury to teach. Then studied at the Litchfield Law School; graduated 1790; and commenced practice in Waterbury. 788 Doctor Joseph⁵ Kingsbury (Simon⁴, Nathaniel³, Joseph², Henry¹), of Ellington. "He was the son of a farmer, and in his latter years often described the habits of society in the days of his youth. Though residing more than a mile from the meeting-house, he used in summer, until more than a dozen years old, to attend service without hat or coat, and with breeches that left the legs bare below the knees—a simplicity of dress that was common to boys of his age in Ellington at that day. He wrote an elegant hand which he had acquired mostly by writing on birch bark, then in general use among school boys as a substitute for paper."—Stiles' History of Ancient Windsor, I, 833. At the age of twenty-one he enlisted in Washington's army for three years as a fifer, in which capacity he participated in the battles of Monmouth and Germantown, and various other minor engagements. His service in the Revolution is described as follows in the U. S. Pension Office Rolls: "He enlisted, March, 1777, for three years under Capt. Paul Brigham, in the regiment commanded by Col^{os} John Chandler, Giles Russell, and Isaac Sherman, as a Fifer, and was in the battles of Germantown, October 4, 1777, and Monmouth, June 28, 1778. The regiment was at the historic camp of Valley Forge in the winter of 1777-8." He was also in the company raised for the Lexington Alarm in East Windsor and in the State troops as a Sergeant. In early life he had intended to be a physician, and while in the service as a musician he enjoyed some leisure during which he sought improvement by observation and otherwise in the hospitals, and some of the surgeons readily gave him such instruction as might at the moment be practicable. Possessing a remarkable aptitude for gathering medical information, and for arranging it into some system of ideas peculiar to himself, he quitted the army with a good stock of professional knowledge, and after studying awhile with Dr. Joseph B. Wadsworth, he commenced practice in Ellington. He married, February 26, 1788, Roxana Allyn, widow of Dr. Wadsworth, and daughter of Lieut. Josiah and Ann (Allyn) Allyn. She inherited a large fortune, and his health failing, the result of the hardships endured in his campaigns, he gradually relinquished practice. He was in most cases partial to botanic and simple remedies; his ideas on medical science were original; his success often indicated a peculiar skill; he enjoyed a high rank in his profession; health and poverty only were needed to urge him to exertions that must greatly have extended his reputation. He was a gentleman of the old school and adhered to the costume of the Revolutionary age. He was Deacon in the church twenty-five years.* His wife, who was born April 20, 1753, died March 5, 1820. He died in Ellington, August 29, 1822, aged 66.

Dr. Wadsworth, in his will, gives to Doctor Joseph Kingsbury "one-third part of what he oweth me for his Instruction in Physick, and a book called Quinzy Dispensatory," February 21, 1784. An "old Herbelist" mentioned in Dr. Wadsworth's inventory.

837 Judge James⁶ Kingsbury (Absalom⁵, Ephraim⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹) of Alstead, N. H., married there, October 5, 1788, Eunice Waldo, of Alstead.*

The Waldo Genealogy says that James Kingsbury married Hannah, daughter of Daniel and Hannah (Carlton)

* Rev. Lavius Hyde, and also extract from the Town Records of Alstead, copied by the Town Clerk. "James Kingsbury and Eunice Waldo was married Oct. 5th, 1788, Jacob Mann, Minister. Recorded Dec. 10, 1789, Isaac Temple, Town Clerk." Perhaps a daughter of Shubael and Abigail (Allen) Waldo, who removed from Mansfield, Conn., to Alstead about 1768.

Waldo, born in Chesterfield, N. H., October 8, 1782, but this must be a mistake. Mrs. Parton, Mr. Kingsbury's granddaughter, says her grandmother's name was Eunice.

In the early spring of 1796, he set out with his wife and three children to find a home in what was then the far distant West. His outfit was a stout farm wagon, drawn by a yoke of oxen, and laden with household goods and provisions; a horse to carry his wife, and two younger children; a cow to supply milk during the journey; and for defense a rusty Queen's-arm musket, with which an older brother had in 1777 done effective service at Bennington. His first destination was Oswego, and after leaving Albany his route lay through a wild forest, where the road was merely a bridle-path blazed through the woods. The little company were forced to camp out among the trees, the woman and children sleeping in the wagon, while the man and the boy (his wife's brother), took turns in watching the fire, which had to be kept in a constant blaze to frighten away the wolves and panthers with which the forest was infested. At Oswego, Kingsbury embarked in an open flat-bottomed boat, rigged with a single sail, capable of carrying his family and household goods, while the young lad mounted upon the horse made his way through the woods along the shore, with the cow and the oxen. At night the boat would be drawn up on the beach, and the camping out experiences repeated. In this slow and toilsome way he journeyed thirty days, when he arrived at Fort Niagara. Here the order of proceeding was reversed. The boat which had carried the wagon was now to be carried by that vehicle over the thirty miles of portage to Lake Erie. Here too, Kingsbury met General Moses Cleveland, agent and director of the Connecticut Land Company, which had recently bought of that State the Western Reserve. Cleveland was traveling in the wake of a surveying party, who had gone forward to lay out this immense tract into townships and cities, and he induced Kingsbury to become the first white settler in northern Ohio. Kingsbury selected a piece of ground at Conneaut, near the Pennsylvania line, erected a cabin, and then broke up the soil, and planted a few acres. Soon after the surveyors left Conneaut, Kingsbury was called by important business to return to his former home in New Hampshire. Going on horseback by the shortest route — overland from Buffalo to Albany — he expected to return by the first of December ; but that time came without him, or any tidings of him, for no mails as yet traveled west of Fort Stanwix, near Utica. The winter set in early with great severity. Snow fell deep late in November, and well nigh blockaded the lonely cabin, and soon the little family ran short of provisions, and the cattle of fodder. Till the snow came the Indians had brought the family game ; but with the first cold weather they had fled, with the birds, southward. To add to the mother's trials another child was then born into the household, the first white child born on the Western Reserve. She ministered to herself as well as she could, and at the end of a fortnight managed to drag herself about the cabin; and during this time another furious storm broke over the little cabin, lasting, without intermission, twenty-one days, and piling still higher the heavy drifts that everywhere covered the forests. It was Christmas Eve when the storm cleared away, and a gleam of sunshine broke at last through the long overhanging clouds. She went to the window to watch the welcome light, and there she caught sight of her husband struggling painfully through the drifts, on foot, with an Indian guide. The reason of his long delay was soon made known to the overjoyed woman. He had been stricken down with a fever at his old home, the seeds of which he had carried from the malarial swamps at Conneaut. As soon as he was sufficiently recovered and able to mount his horse he set out to return, but his progress was impeded by the heavy snows. At Buffalo he obtained an Indian guide, for the snow had obliterated the trail, and none but a native could find the way through the forest. He had been exposed day and night, for three long weeks, to the fury of the storm. The drifts in many places had been higher than his horse's head ; in one of them the animal had perished, and he would have shared its fate, but for the fidelity of the faithful Indian.

Mrs. Kingsbury was now prostrated by fever, and unable to give her child its natural nourishment. The life of the infant then hung upon that of the half-starved cow, whose sole subsistence was the small twigs of the lime, elm, and beach, which had been gathered for the winter's fodder. The stock of provisions had now become all but exhausted, and no supply could be obtained nearer than Erie, twenty-five miles distant. The intense frost which had succeeded the storm had thickly encrusted the snow, and over it on foot and alone, Kingsbury dragged a hand-sled laden with the precious eatables. Flour could not be procured, and only a bushel of wheat; but on this, cracked and boiled, they managed to keep their souls and bodies together. But a great calamity soon befell them. Among the browse for the cattle, the young lad had gathered some twigs of the oak, not knowing that they were poison to dumb creatures. Of these the cow had eaten and died; and thus the little child was doomed to starvation.

Such was the first winter of the first white settler in Northern Ohio. It is not strange that when the surveyors, coming to complete their work in the spring, told him that some of them intended to locate at the new city they had laid out at the westward, he should have decided to leave that desolate wilderness. He did so, and thus became in June, 1797, the first permanent settler of Cleveland, Ohio. He lived first in a deserted cabin left by some Indian traders, who are supposed to have been there in 1786. This he occupied till he could build a cabin of his own, which he soon did, on a spot directly east of the public square, and not far from the present site of the Post-office. On the ground near by — now occupied by the City Hall and Catholic Cathedral — he planted a crop of corn, and thus provided against a repetition of the experiences of the previous winter, and he was the first who thrust a sickle into the first wheat field planted in the soil of the Reserve.

In 1800, Governor St. Clair appointed Mr. Kingsbury Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and Quarter Session of the County. The first session is said to have been held in the open air, between two corn-cribs, Judge Kingsbury occupying a rude bench beneath a tree, the jurors sitting about on the grass, and the prisoners looking on from between the slats of the corn-cribs.

A brook running into the Cuyahoga, is called Kingsbury

Run, and is the only memorial which has been dedicated to the first settler. At the mouth of Kingsbury Run are the works of the Standard Oil Company.

Just before the battle of Lake Erie, Perry's fleet lay to off Cleveland, and was boarded by Judge Kingsbury, who had been engaged to furnish it supplies. Having told him that he was in hourly expectation of encountering the enemy, Perry added, "What would you do, Judge, if he should heave in sight before you leave the ship?" "Do, sir?" answered the Judge, already venerable for his gray hairs, "I would fight. I can do it as well as the best of you."

Judge Kingsbury died in Cleveland, December 12, 1847. His wife died December 7, 1842.

[From portrait in oils, painted by Philip Hewins, Hartford, 1854.]

The Rev. Marvin Root, in his manuscript Reminiscences of Coventry, says: "Captain Paul Brigham, afterwards Lieutenant-Governor of Vermont for many years, raised a company of men mostly from this town. While marching through Hartford Colonel Wadsworth enquired for a Commissary Clerk from his company. Captain B. recommended Andrew Kingsbury, of Coventry, who was afterwards Treasurer of the State 25 years from 1793 to 1818."

He married, in Danbury, January 14, 1783, Mary, daughter of Abner and Mercy (Pettit) Osborn, born in Stamford, Conn., October 3, 1761, and a descendant of Captain Richard Osborn, who served in the Pequot war, 1637, and settled in Fairfield. "In May, 1784, he entered the Pay Table Office of Connecticut as a Clerk, in which, and in the Comptroller's Office, he served until May, 1791; was then by the General Assembly appointed Comptroller of Public Accounts, in which office he continued until May, 1793; was then elected by the freemen of the State, and re-elected annually, as Treasurer of the State of Connecticut till May, 1818 (a period of twenty-five years), and annually appointed as one of the Managers and Treasurer of the School Fund created by the sale of the Connecticut Western Reserve lands in Ohio,* till said May, 1818, and as accountant and book-keeper in the office of the Commissioners of said Fund till October 31, 1827."† He also held the office of Treasurer to the Connecticut Missionary Society, from May, 1799; that of Treasurer to the Hartford Grammar School from May, 1806; and that of Treasurer to the Ministers' Annuity Society from May, 1811, until his death. He held many other offices of trust, and was often called upon to serve the Town and City of Hartford, on committees, and in other ways, and he was considered one of the ablest financiers of his day. He died in Hartford, October 6, 1837. His widow died in Hartford, April 14, 1848. He and his wife became members of the First Church in February, 1815, and the Rev. Dr. Hawes, his pastor, describing men of the old Puritan stamp, said: "That impersonation of honesty, old Andrew Kingsbury, of strong nerve, of lofty character, of stern mould."

* The claim of Connecticut to the territory granted by the Royal Charter of 1662 was considered as satisfied by the grant from Congress of 3,300,000 acres in that part of the Northwest Territory, now Northern Ohio, known as "The Connecticut Western Reserve." In 1792 some five hundred thousand acres in the western part of the Reserve were devoted to the relief of those persons who had been burned out and plundered by the English raids on the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound. The rest was sold under the direction of a legislative committee, and the proceeds were devoted to the school fund of the commonwealth. Other lands belonging to the State, within its borders, and also in Berkshire Co., Mass., were sold for the same purpose. Mr. Kingsbury's signature is found on the records in many parts of the State and in Berkshire Co., attached to conveyances of these lands.

He was much interested in horticulture and floriculture, and the large and beautiful garden of his residence on the corner of Temple and Market streets displayed his favorite tastes. Rare seeds and grafts were sent to him, and he was one of the promoters of the Hartford County Agricultural Society, and its annual fairs. He was also more interested in genealogy than most people of that time were, and his great granddaughter, Miss Talcott, has in her possession a chart which he made out, going back to his ancestor, Joseph Kingsbury, who came from Haverhill to Norwich, giving the descendants as far as he knew them.

850 Ephraim^a Kingsbury (Ephraim^b, Ephraim^c, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), was graduated from Dartmouth College, 1797; settled in Hanover, afterwards in Haverhill, N. H. Ephraim Kingsbury, of Haverhill, N. H., was appointed agent for the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., in June, 1814, "to insure houses, furniture, stores, merchandise, and barns only," in the infancy of the company. He removed to New York City about 1835; a lawyer; assistant clerk, U. S. District Court in New York City; died March 28, 1855, in New York.

He married Margaret Pratt, of Salem, Mass., at Orford, N. H., August 28, 1807; she died in New York, October 12, 1859.

[Ephraim Kingsbury, called "Squire Kingsbury," was a man of importance in the town. He held numerous public positions, being town clerk and treasurer for a number of years, and was also selectman. He was a member of the board of trustees of Haverhill Academy, and at one time principal of the school. He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1797, and afterwards read law, but it does not appear that he was in active practice while living in Haverhill. He moved from town about 1834, and went to Connecticut, and thence to New York, where he died in 1855. He was a man of much ability, but somewhat eccentric, and was noted for extravagant speech and conduct. Once while the Methodists were holding tent-meetings in the park, and were more than usually demonstrative, Kingsbury went to the tent door and read to the meeting the riot act. At another time, when a piece of road on the Oliverian, which had some stone wall in its construction, was to be accepted by the town authorities, he said, in describing the character of the stone used in the wall: "I can put any three stone in it in my eye and wink with perfect ease." — History of Haverhill, by Rev. J. Q. Bittinger, 115.

858 Charles⁶ Kingsbury (Sanford^s, Joseph⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), of Derby, Vt. He was one of the pioneer settlers of Derby, and during the first year or two he worked on his "clearing," living in a bark shanty through the summer months, and returning to Claremont in the winter, although the journey was long and tedious. The monotony of his labors was somewhat enlivened by frequent visits from the bears and wolves, who took much interest in the small crop of turnips raised by the settlers for summer consumption, and also in the few sheep and cattle imported into the country. His only solace in his exile was his violin, probably the only article of luxury he took from the paternal home. He would play the old tunes of his boyhood to a small and select audience frequently consisting of himself and "old Ide Indian," who often visited him while his wigwam was on the shore of "Salem Pond." Mr. Kingsbury became early identified with the growing interests of his chosen home. About 1797 his first deed of land is dated; it was situated about half way between the center of the town and the Canada line, and about eighty yards east of the present traveled road. Here he had the first apple orchard in the town, and made the first cider. The Kingsbury orchard is still yielding fruit. He married, September 17, 1800, Persis Stewart, daughter of General Stewart, of Brattleboro, Vt., born October 26, 1777.

In 1812 he moved to a place about half a mile out of the village of Derby Center, and in 1820 removed again to the house opposite the Congregational Church, known as "the Kingsbury Place." He was the first Representative sent from the town to the General Assembly, holding the office four years, and again in 1828, '29, '38, '39. He was Town Treasurer from 1812 to 1833; Justice of the Peace for thirty years; Lister from 1816 to 1826, and Overseer of the Poor for three years. "It was said (by the Rev. Charles Backus, of Somers) that the Kingsbury family were remarkable for their attachment to agricultural pursuits from their first settlement in America; that they lived in the common, temperate style of the New England farmer; that they were a noble-hearted, intelligent, industrious race of the strictest integrity, disdaining the low arts of dissimulation, shunning the ways of vice, and walking in the paths of virtue and piety, and Esq^r. Kingsbury never brought shame or discredit upon the good name of his ancestry. From his clear perception of right and wrong, his services were often solicited in behalf of the widow and fatherless, in settling estates, and carrying out the wishes and provisions of the departed. Although he served the town faithfully and well in almost every capacity, yet he could not be called a public man. It was in his private circle that his character shone the brightest; in home loves and friendships the innate goodness of his nature was displayed undimmed and untarnished."

He died in Derby May 5, 1843, aged 69 years, 5 months, and 13 days, and his wife died January 28, 1843.

Mrs. Wight had been a pupil of the Rev. Mr. Woodruff, of Coventry, and was a woman of strong literary taste, and of unusual observation and intelligence. He was superintendent and part owner of a factory in Coventry. After his marriage he resided in Lebanon, Conn., and then removed to Griswold. The names of Daniel and Roxana Wight occur in the list of organizing members of the Second Ecclesiastical Society of Griswold, April 14, 1825, which Society they joined by letter from the First Church in Griswold. Mrs. Wight died July 21, 1828, in Jewett City, Conn. After his wife's death he left Connecticut and settled in Albia, now a part of Troy, N. Y., where he had charge of a large woolen factory. Every morning at nine o'clock he summoned the factory employes to prayers by the sound of a bell—an incident which gives a glimpse of his character, and is an evidence how differently things used to be done. On May 1, 1832, he moved into Troy, where he lived for twenty-two years, being engaged in the wool commission business, in partnership with his son, William. He married (2) in Troy, May 1, 1833, his first wife's niece, Sophronia, daughter of Ebenezer and Eunice Backus (Kingsbury) Porter. In May, 1856, he removed to Sand Lake, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., where he engaged in the manufacture of satinets, warps, stockings, etc., and in a grist mill and store. He retired from active business and returned to Troy, when his house was burnt in 1862. In 1863 he removed with his wife and daughter to Bloomfield, N. J. He died suddenly in New York City, October 19, 1864, and was buried in Oakwood Cemetery, Troy. While living in Troy he was, in 1841, school commissioner, and one of the school trustees of the Second Ward, and in 1843 alderman. He is still gratefully remembered by "The Ecclesiastical Society of North Coventry," as its members are summoned to their public worship by the tones of the bell which he caused to be placed in the church tower in November, 1847.* His widow died in Somerville, N. J., November 10, 1892. For her children see page 296.

But he resigned after his wife's death, in 1836, and became keeper of U. of Presque Isle, Erie, Pa. ; married there, April 23, 1835, Jane A. C. Moore. He died in Erie, November 25, 1835. His widow married (2) ——— Hayward, of Illinois.

CHILD.

- 1183 WILLIAM EUSTIS, born February 15, 1836, at Erie; brought up by his uncle, T. H. C. Kingsbury, of Franklin ; he entered the U. S. Military Academy, but was dismissed for insubordination; was for several years clerk in a drug store in Norwich, Conn ; he subsequently enlisted in the regular army, and was promoted from the ranks, attaining the position of Captain in the Eleventh U. S. Infantry ; he experienced much active service in the war between the States, and in Indian warfare on the frontier, his latest post being on the Little Big Horn River, Montana. He was wounded in the Civil War, and at one time shot through with poisoned Indian arrows. By severe exposure his health was undermined, and in 1885 he was placed on the retired list. He was held in high esteem by army comrades, and often complimented by the War Department for his prompt and thorough official reports. Capt. Kingsbury inherited the medal of the Cincinnati, as the last male descendant of his grandfather, Col. Jacob Kingsbury. He died in Norwich, Conn., Oct. 4, 1887, unm.; buried in Franklin.

[William Eustis Kingsbury, the posthumous son of William Eustis Kingsbury, entered West Point, but did not graduate. He said he came very near being at the head of his class, and if a proposed plan had been carried out he would have been. Being asked what the plan was, he said, "to change ends with the class." On one occasion, being stationed next the man who had charge of the morning gun, some time in the night the gun went off, and William, being asked about it, said the gun looked to him as if it was liable to go off, and he meant to have spoken to the man who had charge of it, but it slipped his mind. From these incidents it will be seen why West Point and he did not agree. The truth is that, while he had ability, and was once or twice reinstated after being dropped for outrageous pranks, he was too full of mischief to hold in.

After leaving he tried various kinds of business without success, and finally enlisted as a private soldier in the U. S. Army, and at the breaking out of the war was in Texas in Gen. Twiggs' command. On the surrender by that officer of the U. S. property to the State of Texas, Kingsbury came North and obtained a commission in a regiment of volunteers; he was soon promoted to a captaincy and was retained as a Captain on the peace establishment after the war of the rebellion.

After seeing considerable service at the West, and having served in the Modoc War, he was retired and returned to Norwich, Conn., where he died October 4, 1887. He was a popular man among his friends, of great good nature, and an inexhaustible fund of humor. He never married. [F. J. K.]

904 Charles Denison^e Kingsbury (John^a, Nathaniel^a, Joseph^b, Joseph^b, Henry^b), merchant and landed proprietor at Waterbury, Conn.; married (1) March 5, 1821, Eliza, daughter of Dr. Frederick and Fanny (Johnson) Leavenworth,* born in Waterbury, December 17, 1798; she died November 16, 1852; he married (2) Rebecca, daughter of Deacon Elijah Hotchkiss, of Waterbury, November 24, 1859; she died December, 1873. He died January 16, 1890.

[Charles D. Kingsbury was educated in the schools of the town and in the Rev. Daniel Parker's school at Ellsworth, in Sharon. When 17 years of age he began mercantile life as a clerk in Waterbury. In 1814 he had a serious affection of the lungs, but recovered from it, and made a journey on horseback to New London, riding all day in sight of Hardy's fleet, which was then lying in the Sound, and which afterwards attacked Stonington. About this time he studied medicine with Dr. Edward Field, and thus acquired the title of Doctor, which, among his early acquaintances, he retained through life. In the fall of this year (1814) he entered the employ of Burton & Leavenworth, and during the winter following traveled with Mr. Leavenworth through the Southern States selling clocks. After their return he dissolved partnership with Mr. Leavenworth, and spent one year in Richmond and the vicinity, selling books for the publishing house of Mitchell, Ames & White of Philadelphia, mostly law books and medical works. He visited the lawyers and physicians at the county-seats and at their homes, and was everywhere kindly received, frequently spending several days at one place. He always referred to his experience at that time as extremely pleasant and profitable. He became a member of the First Congregational Church in 1816, and remained in full communion therewith throughout his life. In the spring of 1821 he leased and subsequently purchased the store where he had formerly been employed, and here he carried on a mercantile business for nearly twenty years. He also employed men in the manufacture of shoes and harnesses, and had a pearl button factory and a sawmill on Mad River. In 1838 Mr. Kingsbury's health being impaired, he gave up his mercantile business, and thereafter devoted himself to the care and cultivation of his land, carrying on farming for several years on an extensive scale, and later, building and selling houses and selling land. His father and his grandfather were large landholders, and for that reason, and because he took an interest in the subject, he probably possessed, after the death of his uncle, Judge Bronson, more information in regard to early land lines, bounds, and titles, than any other inhabitant of Waterbury. At different times he held various offices in the town, borough, and school organizations. He was, at the time of his death, the oldest member of the First Church, and the oldest native-born resident of the town. Notwithstanding his great age and a naturally delicate organization, he retained his faculties to a remarkable degree, and kept his elastic step, and he kept his accounts regularly, making daily entries until five days before his death. He died January 16, 1890, in a house on North Main street which he had occupied for nearly sixty years, and which was built by his great great-grandfather, Thomas Bronson.—History of Waterbury, II, 240-2.]

“He fulfilled with great fidelity, during his many years, the various duties of a citizen, a church member, a householder, and a neighbor, but did it in a way so unostentatious and so simple, that the impression he made upon the community did not serve as a measure of his ability and breadth. Not alone in his Puritan simplicity, but in his clear-headedness and intellectual strength, he was a fine representative of the older generations of New England men. While indifferent to many of the modern novelties and notions, he had a clear apprehension of what was really valuable in our modern life, and was prompt to place himself in sympathy with it. He did not produce upon those who talked with him the impression that he was being left behind in the movements of events; he was a man of the times. At the same time he delighted in the memories of the past. His memory was good and his conversational gifts were of a high order; so that it was a real pleasure to sit beside him and look upon his vivid word pictures of the days that are no more.

"The lessons of such a life cannot be measured off and numbered, and they are of a kind which would gain but little heed from this busy world of ours. But we cannot but regret that there are so few today who covet that life of simplicity and quiet peace which Mr. Kingsbury through all these years has so beautifully exemplified."—Obituary notice in Waterbury American.

905 Julius Jesse Bronson⁶ Kingsbury (John⁵, Nathaniel⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), graduated from U. S. Military Academy, West Point, 1823; married at Fort Brady, Michigan, June 19, 1825, Jane Creed Stebbins, born in New York, March 13, 1810, daughter of Henry Stebbins, Esq.

[Julius Jesse Bronson Kingsbury, the second son of Judge John Kingsbury, was born October 18, 1797. As there was no school in Waterbury of a higher grade than a district school, he was sent away from home to pursue his studies. In 1819 he obtained, through the influence of David Daggett, then a Member of Congress, an appointment as cadet at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. He left West Point in regular course in 1823; was attached as Lieutenant to the Second Regiment of Infantry, and ordered with a detachment of troops to Sault Ste. Marie at the outlet of Lake Superior, to assist in building Fort Brady. Here he remained three or four years under Major (afterward Col.) Cutler, during which time he married Jane C. Stebbins of New York, sister-in-law of Captain Walter Bicker, also of the Second Regiment. Next he was ordered with a detachment, by sea, to New Orleans and Nacogdoches. Afterwards he was stationed for a time at Mackinaw and Fort Gratiot. During the Black Hawk war in 1832 he was in Chicago, attached to the commissary department, and saw much hard and dangerous service. While there — Chicago being then in its infancy — he purchased, for $700, about thirty-six acres of land on the north branch of the Chicago river, near its junction with the south branch, and about two acres on the south side of the main river, the latter tract in the heart of the present city, and the former but a little distant. The land is still in the possession of the family, and is of great value. He was afterward at Fort Niagara. Still later, during the disturbances on the northeastern frontier, he was stationed at Hancock barracks, Holton, Me. Thence, after the breaking out of the Seminole war, he was ordered with his command to Tampa Bay, Fla. There he remained three years (with the exception of a short interval), and his constitution was so broken up by the combined influence of climate, exposure, and fatigue, that he never recovered. On his return to the North, he was stationed at Sackett's Harbor, and afterward, a second time, at Fort Brady. He left this last post early in 1847 to join General Scott before Vera Cruz. He assisted in the capture of that place, and was more or less engaged in all the battles which occurred on the march to the City of Mexico. For his good conduct in one of the engagements near the city, he was brevetted. Throughout the campaign he acted as Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment, though he was at that time only a Captain.

While in Mexico, Captain Kingsbury was attacked by a severe brain fever, which seriously threatened his life. When he had recovered sufficient strength, General Scott sent him home on sick leave. In December, 1848, having partially regained his health, he was ordered, with a part of his regiment, to California, and remained there nearly two years. While there he was promoted and transferred to the Sixth Regiment. He returned home in the summer of 1850, but too much out of health to be fit for duty. He spent the next two years in Washington and with friends at the East, on sick leave. He then started to join his regiment at St. Louis, but was detained at Detroit by illness, and was compelled to spend the winter there (1852-3). While there, owing to some misunderstanding with the War Department, not involving his integrity or honor, his name was stricken from the army roll. Conceiving himself to have been unfairly treated, he declined to make any explanation, or to hold any communication with the Department. Before his death, however, he settled all his accounts with the Government and received a balance which was found due him.

He died in Washington, when on the point of leaving for the East, on June 26, 1856. His remains were brought to Waterbury, and he was buried here, according to his expressed wish, in the old burying-ground by the side of his father.

Major Kingsbury was a brave and skillful officer, always equal to the duties imposed upon him. He was for nearly thirty years connected with the army, and though sometimes charged with indolence and procrastination in matters of detail and routine service, he was active and efficient in the field, and was ever distinguished by honorable conduct. He lost his health and ruined his constitution in the public service. He left a widow, who died January 16, 1892; a daughter Mary (since dead), who married Capt. Simon B. Buckner, of the United States army, afterward General in the Confederate service and Governor of Kentucky; and a son, Henry W., who was killed at Antietam while in command of the Eleventh Connecticut Volunteers. His eldest son, Julius, died in California in 1850.—History of Waterbury. His widow lived for many years in Black Hall, Old Lyme, Conn. For thirty years she had accompanied her husband in his military life, residing at Mackinaw, Fort Gratiot, Detroit, Chicago, Niagara, Sackett's Harbor, and other frontier posts, in the early days of the West. During his absence on active service in Florida, Mexico, and elsewhere, she lived with friends in Lyme, and spent the last twenty years of her life there. She was a woman of wide social experience, interesting in conversation, and graceful in person and manner.

He began life as a clerk in his father's drug store, but soon entered into railroad work, and at the time of his death he was probably the oldest railroad man in active service in the United States. He was general freight agent on the Erie road from 1853 to 1855, removing in the latter year to Cleveland, where for forty-three years he served the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad through its varied changes, promoting its growth from many small lines into one perfected system. From 1855 to 1881 he was its General Freight Agent, and few men know that he was the originator of many improvements in freight service, especially of the through system of fast freight lines in the sixties. From 1881 to 1886 he was assistant general manager, and then he was appointed assistant to the President, performing the duties of his office with fidelity and efficiency to the end. His ability was known and recognized, not only by the officials of that road, but throughout the country, and he was regarded as an undisputed authority in traffic matters. Even at his great age he was frequently consulted by the younger officers of the railroad, so clear was his mind, so excellent the preservation of his faculties. He was the first Recorder of Painesville, when the town was incorporated in 1832. He was one of the incorporators of the Parish of St. James in Painesville, Protestant Episcopal, February 26, 1835, and he was elected vestryman April 4, 1836. He presented the church with a fine organ, and in later years assisted largely in removing a heavy debt on the new church building. "He was a man of the purest integrity, of rare ability, of spotless reputation, far-reaching in his judgment, God-fearing, honored, loved, and mourned by the wide circle of friends his beautiful life had influenced, with its great responsibilities faithfully per-1051 James Waldo⁷ Kingsbury (James⁶, Absalom⁵, Ephraim⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), of Cleveland, Ohio; married, October 3, 1849, Lucinda Ely, daughter of Andrew and Elizabeth (DeWolfe) Williams, born in Becket, Mass., February 14, 1825. His business was furnishing stone and brick for building purposes. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church. His wife died September 28, 1875. He died October 29, 1881, in Cleveland.

[James W. Kingsbury, whose death was announced in yesterday's issue, was, in the true sense of the term, one of the pioneers of this city, having been born in the present limits thereof in April, 1813. He was a son of Judge James Kingsbury, who, with his family, arrived in Cleveland at the early date of 1797, and soon after entered his log cabin at the point now known as Kinsman Street and Woodland Hills Avenue. He acquired the ownership of a farm embracing several hundred acres in extent, and died seized of the same, the ownership of which gave the name of Kingsbury Hill to the ridge upon which it was mainly situated. Mr. James W. Kingsbury was in every way a good man and citizen, a gentleman of the old school, frank, open-hearted, and generous, ever having the confidence and esteem of his neighbors and acquaintances. His memory was replete with incidents and reminiscences connected with the early settlement of the country and the early inhabitants thereof, now passed away. It was in the highest degree entertaining to listen to his recital of personal adventures of the hardy pioneers in this then pathless wilderness, the dangers encountered and overcome, the hardships endured and survived. The decedent, up to the opening of the late civil war, adhered to the politics of his father, being a democrat of the Jacksonian type, and during the war he was an uncompromising war democrat. During the last few years of his life party lines were not strictly observed by him, as he voted rather for men and measures than for party. Thus has another of our most prominent and respected citizens departed for his long home. Obituary notice in the Cleveland Leader.]

His portrait hangs in the rooms of the Historical Society on Euclid Avenue, Cleveland.

He was then ordered to Headquarters, Army of the Potomac, and assisted in the organization of the Medical Department, doing Hospital field duty in all the battles of McClellan's Campaign against Richmond, most of the time acting as assistant to Dr. Tripler, who was McClellan's Chief Medical Officer. He received his promotion as Major and Surgeon June 11, 1862, and was engaged in the work of establishing hospitals at Philadelphia, Hagerstown, Chambersburg, and Harrisburg, until October, 1862. 1062 Maria⁷ Kingsbury (Andrew⁶, Ephraim⁵, Ephraim⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), of Hartford; married, November 25, 1809, George Goodwin of Hartford, born April 23, 1786, son of George and Mary (Edwards) Goodwin, and a descendant of Ozias Goodwin, one of the first settlers of Hartford. He graduated from Yale College, 1806, and then went into business in Hartford. His father, the elder George Goodwin, was a member of the firm of Hudson & Goodwin, printers and publishers. In 1815, this firm was dissolved, and George Goodwin & Sons succeeded to the business of book-selling, printing, and publishing; the leading interest then being the "Connecticut Courant," which they retained until 1836, and for which and numerous other publications they made the paper at their mill in East Hartford. In order to give more attention to paper-making, which gradually became their leading business, Mr. Goodwin removed his residence to that part of East Hartford now Burnside, in 1821. Here he at once became a leading man in all that concerned the welfare of his town, taking strong ground in favor of temperance, morality, and religion. Three times he represented East Hartford in the legislature, but he had no taste for political life, and no desire for office. As a citizen he was foremost in every good work, always "devising liberal things"; as a neighbor kind and helpful, always giving and lending; as a Christian humble and retiring, but utterly conscientious, firm and faithful in duty. He had the delicacy and purity of a woman, and the strength and courage of a soldier. He loved nature and planted trees in every available spot. He loved good books, chief of all the Bible and Matthew Henry, and had the taste of a scholar in his reading. He loved his church, and gave liberally to build and sustain it; and he was for many years an honored officer in it, and in the Ecclesiastical Society. Mrs. Maria Goodwin died in Burnside, March 6, 1851. Mr. George Goodwin died in Burnside, February 8, 1878. [The Goodwins of Hartford, Connecticut, 650-2.]

He married October 28, 1846, Mary Seymour, daughter of Charles and Catharine (Perkins) Seymour, born in Hartford, November 1, 1820, and a descendant of Richard Seymour, a settler of Hartford in 1639, and also of other early settlers in Connecticut, among them Gov. John Haynes, Gov. George Wyllys, and Gov. John Webster. He held various offices of trust, first vice-president and then president of the Young Men's Institute; a director of the Hartford Bank; much interested in the founding of the Pearl Street Church, now the Farmington Avenue Church, and held the position of Clerk of the Church and Society; one of the Board of Managers and Secretary of the Retreat for the Insane. He died in Hartford March 3, 1863, and Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney, who had known him all his life, wrote memorial stanzas for him, a portion of which are here given:

" They'll miss him in the thronging mart,
 Where, with pure mind and upright heart,
 He held his quiet way;
 And those who trace the record through
 Of all his earthly time,
 Remember naught of wrong or blame,—
 Of folly that might cloud his name,
 Even in his boyhood's prime.
 . . . With ever gentle hand,
 Affection's links he won,
 And works of taste around him drew,
 And friendship of the chosen few,
 And plants that bloom above."

His widow died in Hartford, April 18, 1883. Children: 1, Mary Kingsbury, born November 3, 1847; living in Hartford, unmarried. During her earlier life Miss Talcott was much interested in art, but of late years has devoted herself to historical and genealogical work. She prepared five chapters in the "Memorial History of Hartford County, 1886;" edited two volumes of the "Talcott Papers," consisting of the correspondence of Gov. Joseph Talcott, for the Connecticut Historical Society; wrote the sketch of Hartford in "Historic Towns of New England," published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1898; the chapter on "Hartford in the Revolution" in "Hartford in History," 1899; sketches of the Wyllys Family, the Ellery Family, and others, and has done much other work more strictly genealogical. She has held the office of Registrar of the Ruth Wyllys Chapter, D. A. R., for ten years, and has been a member of the Board of Managers and Registrar of the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames since 1894. She is Chairman for Connecticut of the Order of Descendants of Colonial Gover-

She is the compiler of this History of the Kingsbury Family, the records collected by others having been placed in her hands, and she has also gathered much new material herself.

1106 Oliver Richmond⁷ Kingsbury (Oliver⁶, Joseph⁵, Ebenezer⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), of New York City, married, September 26, 1838, Susan, daughter of Alexander and Jane (Burras) Patterson of New York City, born November 17, 1809. He was brought up in Coventry, in the family of his grandfather, and at the age of eighteen, in March or April, 1827, moved to New York City, and lived there the rest of his life. He entered the service of the American Tract Society, where his uncle, Harlan Page, was engaged, from his first coming to New York, until the end of his days; he became Assistant Treasurer in 1834, and was Treasurer of the Society for many years before his retirement in 1887. He was connected with the Presbyterian Church for many years, successively Ruling Elder in the Sixth Street, Fourteenth Street, and Central Presbyterian Churches, and he was several times commissioner to the General Assembly. The following paragraph appeared in the American Messenger, relating to the action taken by the American Tract Society at the annual meeting in May, 1887, with regard to Mr. Kingsbury :

“In accordance with the direction of the Executive Committee, at a special meeting held May 9th, the following resolution is offered. As Mr. O. R. Kingsbury has stated that on account of increasing age he would decline a re-election as Treasurer, it was :

“Resolved, That the society, now assembled in annual meeting, cannot consent to part with Mr. Kingsbury as Treasurer without placing on record its estimate of his long and faithful services. A youth of 17, he entered the service of the society in 1827 in a subordinate capacity. In 1834 he was elected Assistant Secretary; in 1835 was added the duty of Assistant Treasurer. He performed the duties of treasurership from that time until the present, having received the title of Treasurer in 1870. He has been annually elected in this capacity for 53 years with no dissenting voice. During this period there passed through the treasury about $17,000,000, and so far as known not one dollar was ever lost in connection with his department. During these 60 years he has been out of the office from illness but once for any length of time, and only for three months then. Nor has he taken during these threescore years, on an average, one week's vacation per annum. Not a little of the untarnished reputation of the Society is due to his calm judgment, clear view of financial questions, incorruptible integrity, and high Christian character. Taking into view the multiplicity of interests involved, the amount of money handled in unnumbered small sums, the total absence of loss or failure in payment of notes, and the length of unbroken service, it will be difficult to find parallels in the religious or financial institutions of the country."

In connection with this resolution Rev. Dr. William Ormiston said that this was a most marvelous record. He wished for Mr. Kingsbury many years yet of useful life.

Rev. William R. Eastman gave some personal reminiscences of the old Tract House that existed in the days of his boyhood, when his father (Rev. O. Eastman, for fifty years one of the Secretaries of the Society) solicited the funds of which Mr. Kingsbury took charge. He said that it always seemed to him that the Treasurer was dealing with God's silver and gold, and he was glad to have this opportunity of paying his personal tribute of respect.

The resolution was then adopted unanimously by a rising vote.

Mr. Kingsbury was elected Treasurer emeritus.

[Not a little of the untarnished reputation of the Tract Society is due to the calm judgment, clear view of financial questions, and incorruptible integrity of Mr. Kingsbury. In view of the varied interests involved, the amount of money handled in small sums, the absence of loss or failure in payment of notes, and the length of unbroken service, it will be difficult to find a parallel to his career in the religious or financial institutions of the country. Mr. Kingsbury was distinguished by a practical bent of mind. He was a man of sound sense, a retiring disposition, a man of orderly ways, and quiet tastes. His office was to him almost as sacred as his church, and there the responsible duties of his earnest life were faithfully performed. Obituary Notice in N. Y. Times Dec. 12, 1889.] He died in New York, Dec. 11, 1889. His wife died June 17, 1849.

1128 Brevet Brigadier-General Charles Peeble⁷ Kingsbury (Horatio Gates⁶, Eleazer⁵, Eleazer⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), was appointed to West Point from North Carolina; graduated in 1840, second in a class which numbered among its members the future Generals William Tecumseh Sherman and George H. Thomas. He was assigned by his own choice to the Ordnance Department. In August, 1845, he was directed to report to General Taylor, then commanding the army of occupation at Corpus Christi, Texas. At Buena Vista he rendered valuable service, and continued in Mexico during the war as ordnance officer. The first account of the battle of Buena Vista received in this country, appeared in the New Orleans Delta, and was written by him. It was a remarkably brilliant description, and was prepared the night after the battle, in his tent, with a powder keg for his table. His first promotion was for gallant and meritorious conduct at the battle of Buena Vista. He was promoted to Captain in 1854 for fourteen years' continuous service. The outbreak of the Civil War found him on duty at Richmond, Va., and he was soon after appointed principal assistant in the Ordnance Office. After the news was received that Virginia had seceded, and that Governor Letcher was about to attempt the capture of the Harper's Ferry Armory, the Secretary of War, at the suggestion of General Scott, immediately ordered Captain Kingsbury to the command of the Armory. From the general feeling manifested by the operatives and citizens it soon became evident that any attempt to defend the post by the few regulars in garrison must necessarily fail, and to baffle the object of the enemy the destruction of the 15,000 muskets and rifles in the armory was the only alternative. This contingency was not contemplated at Washington when Captain Kingsbury received his instructions from General Scott, but there was no time for deliberation, and with a full sense of the responsibility he incurred, he determined, if possible, to destroy the Armory and its contents. When the report came that Letcher's raiders were within three miles of the place the order was given to apply the match; the shops and machinery fell into the hands of the enemy, but the arms, for which the expedition was principally undertaken, were destroyed. Captain Kingsbury, however, came near losing his life at the hands of an infuriated mob, but the manly interposition of a prominent citizen saved him from becoming the first victim of the Civil War, and enabled him to escape from his captors. He was afterwards ordered to report to General McClellan, and he served as Chief of Ordnance of the Army of the Potomac through the Peninsular Campaign; in 1863 he was promoted to Major; in 1865 he was made a Brevet Brigadier-General for gallant and meritorious services in the Civil War. After the siege of Yorktown, and the Seven Days' Battles before Richmond, General Kingsbury's health broke down, and he was forced to retire from active service for a time. Later he was appointed to Rock Island Arsenal, and began the buildings there, and was transferred from them to the Watertown Arsenal near Boston. Here, his health failing, he was retired on his own application, and made Brooklyn, N. Y., his home. General Kingsbury was always a student and a writer. He was the author of an "Elementary Treatise on Artillery and Infantry," and was at one time a contributor to magazines and journals. An interesting incident of General Kingsbury's life is that he was the first man to urge General Grant to re-enter the army at the breaking out of the war. After this conversation the two men did not meet again until General Grant visited the Watertown Arsenal as President. His first greeting as he shook hands was: "Well, Kingsbury, you see I followed your advice." General

Kingsbury died in Brooklyn, N. Y., December 25, 1878. Generals Hancock, Slocum, Casey, Newton, Mitchell, and McKeever acted as pall bearers, and the coffin was borne by eight private soldiers in uniform from the force stationed at Governor's Island. At the funeral services his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Cuyler, made the following remarks :

He spoke of the character of the deceased, and alluded to the fact that for eight years he had been a member of that church, and had always been one of its most devoted members. The pastor alluded especially to the regularity with which General Kingsbury attended upon the services of the church. He was always present at the weekly prayer meeting when he was in the city, and, although his native modesty and diffidence did not permit him to speak, yet his conduct and character was a bright and shining example. In speaking of this phase of General Kingsbury's religious character, Dr. Cuyler alluded to the incident which occurred recently at one of the prayer meetings of the church, when in company with General Kingsbury there were Generals Casey and Patrick, and all three occupied the same seat — three white-haired soldiers — who had been companions in arms in Mexico and elsewhere, and were likewise comrades in the service of Christ. All were West Point graduates, and it was not an uncommon sight to be seen in their prayer meetings. Both Generals Casey and Patrick spoke upon the occasion with force and power.

The speaker also alluded to the hearty and aggressive loyalty of the deceased, and his firm adherence to the republic in her hour of danger. Although his domestic ties were on the side of the South, and many of his best and earliest friends were in that region, it seemed only to have the effect of increasing his love for his country. The deceased was a man strong in his convictions upon every point, and this trait of his character shows with especial brilliancy in all matters connected with his religious life. He was firm and well grounded in his faith, and had a reason for it, the same as he did in everything else upon which he formed an opinion.

Dr. Cuyler spoke at length upon the connection of the deceased with the church which he loved so well and where he was so constant an attendant. His life afforded a bright example and was worthy of all emulation by those whom he left behind.

He married, June 1, 1848, Mary McMillan of Fayetteville, N. C.; she died in Brooklyn, N. Y., April 23, 1888.

1132 Barton Price⁷ Kingsbury (John Clark⁶, Eleazer⁵, Eleazer⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), married at Newark, N. Y., September, 1852, Cornelia N. Brown, as his second wife; she died in Chillicothe, O., May 3, 1858. He was cashier of the Ross County Branch State Bank of Ohio, and afterwards cashier in one of the national banks of Chillicothe, O. His health failed in 1875, and he was living at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, O. (1880).

1136 Theodore Bryant⁷ Kingsbury (Russell⁶, Eleazer⁵, Eleazer⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), of Wilmington, N. C. He was educated at the Oxford Academy, the Bingham School, and was at the Lovejoy Military Academy, Raleigh, for two years before entering the University of North Carolina. He married, March, 1851, Sallie Jones Atkinson, born May 5, 1832, daughter of General Roger Pryor Atkinson and Margaret M. Littlejohn, his wife, of Haywood county, Virginia, a descendant of Richard Bland, and connected with the Lees, Randolphs, Pryors, Poytresses, and Mayos, and with the Littlejohns, Blounts, Cheshires, and Pettigrews of eastern North Carolina.

After leaving the University he entered his father's mercantile establishment and became his partner; but after his father's death, in 1856, he retired from business. In 1858 he founded and edited the Leisure Hour, a purely literary paper, published in Oxford. He has been connected with many North Carolina publications, dailies, weeklies, and monthlies; among them the Raleigh Sentinel, the Raleigh Advocate, the North Carolina Educational Journal, and the Tarboro Southerner. He edited Our Living and Our Dead, a historical, literary, and educational magazine, the organ of the North Carolina Branch of the Southern Historical Society. After the first issue he became the editor and the principal contributor to the literary department. In 1876 he delivered a historical address at the request of the people of Oxford, on the 4th of July, upon Granville County. The manuscript, if written out in full, would make a volume of some 175 or 200 pages. The same year he was invited to the editorial chair of the Morning Star, published at Wilmington, which position he held until 1889. He then resigned and accepted the same position on the Messenger, which he still holds, and as a journalist and literary critic, he has wielded much influence in his native state. In 1882 he delivered the literary address before Wilson Female College in North Carolina. An address which he delivered in 1883, at the request of the Methodists of North Carolina, on the Life and Character of Thomas G. Lowe, was published in a large edition, which was entirely exhausted. He received the degree of LL.D. from the University of North Carolina in 1888. "It is no secret to Dr. Kingsbury's friends that he could have long since held conspicuous public station if he had so willed. In 1876 he was widely besought to allow his name to be used before the Democratic convention for the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. Under Mr. Cleveland's administration, such was the potency of his editorials in the preceding campaign, and so distinguished were his merits, that the entire North Carolina delegation in Congress proffered their coöperation to secure him a valuable appointment. This he declined. And time and again during the shifting fortunes of our State University he has been suggested and urged by the press to prominent professorships, and to the presidency of the institution. With all his editorial and literary labors Dr. Kingsbury also fills the office of class leader in the Methodist church. He is a close student of theology, and enjoys the keen investigation of theological questions. A sketch of Dr. Kingsbury, however short, would be incomplete without mention of that unerring critical faculty which is his highest intellectual gift. Though by the force of circumstances, and not by the bent of his own talents as a political writer, his most passionate preference is for the discriminating faculty in reference to men and books. He has always been the true friend and ready helper of native talent and genuine merit, in whatever field of human achievement it reveals itself, and especially in the realm of literary pursuits. His work, his example, his words of comfort and encouragement have been a blessing and an inspiration to many of the younger journalists and literati of his beloved Carolina."

Very sincerely yours
Theodore Bryant Kingsbury

1184 Frederick John Kingsbury (*Charles Denison*⁶, *John*⁵, *Nathaniel*⁴, *Joseph*³, *Joseph*², *Henry*¹), born at Waterbury, January 1, 1823; married, April 29, 1851, Alathea Ruth, daughter of William Henry and Eunice Ruth (Davies) Scovill.

Frederick John Kingsbury is the only son of Charles Denison and Eliza (Leavenworth) Kingsbury, and was born in Waterbury, January 1, 1823. He was educated in the schools of the town, and also spent a year and a half, partly in study, with his maternal uncle, the Rev. Abner J. Leavenworth, in Virginia. He completed his preparation for college with the Rev. Seth Fuller, at that time Principal of the Waterbury Academy, and graduated at Yale College in the class of 1846. He studied law in the Yale Law School under Judge W. L. Storrs and Isaac H. Townsend, and with Hon. Charles G. Loring of Boston and the Hon. Thomas C. Perkins of Hartford. He was admitted to the Boston bar in 1848.

Mr. Kingsbury opened an office in Waterbury in 1849, but in 1853 he abandoned the law for the banking business, in which and in manufactures and other business enterprises he has been since engaged.

In 1850 he represented the town in the Legislature. Having his attention directed to savings banks, and believing that a savings bank would be a benefit to the people of Waterbury, he obtained a charter for one. He was appointed its treasurer, and has successfully administered its affairs since that time. In 1853, in connection with Abram Ives, he established the Citizens' Bank, of which he has been president for many years. He was a member, also, of the Legislatures of 1858 and 1865, and was chairman of the Committee on Banks. In 1865 he was a member of the committee on a revision of the statutes of Connecticut.

In January, 1858, he was made a director of the Scovill Manufacturing Company. He was secretary of that company from March, 1862, to January, 1864, and treasurer from March, 1862, to January, 1866. In 1868 he succeeded S. W. Hall as president, and has held that office ever since. He is secretary of the Detroit and Lake Superior Copper Company, organized in 1867. He was for a number of years a director of the New York & New England Railroad, and is a director of the Naugatuck Railroad.

Mr. Kingsbury has been treasurer of the Bronson Library fund since its reception by the city in 1868. He is a member of the Board of Agents of the library, and chairman of the Book Committee. He has been treasurer of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut since 1879. In 1881 he was elected a member of the Corporation of Yale College, and was reëlected in 1887, and again in 1893.

At the centennial celebration of Williams College, October 10, 1893, he received the degree of LL.D., and the same degree from Yale in 1899. He was elected President of the American Social Science Association in 1893, 1894, and 1895. He is a member of the American Antiquarian Society, the American Historical Association, the Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences, the New Haven County Historical Society, the Society of Colonial Wars, and the University and Century Clubs. As all this would indicate, he is fond of historical and literary pursuits, and of late years he has given much attention to sociological questions. He has a strong taste for genealogical inquiries, and a remarkable memory for minute events and family relationships; so that he is a recognized authority in matters of local history. 1185 Sarah Leavenworth⁷ Kingsbury (Charles Denison⁶, John⁶, Nathaniel¹, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹), married February 24, 1863, Franklin Carter, the third son of Deacon Preserve Wood and Ruth (Holmes) Carter, born in Waterbury September 30, 1837. In December, 1853, he entered Phillips Academy, Andover, and graduated from that school with the valedictory address in July, 1855. He entered Yale College in September of the same year, and in June, 1856, was the successful competitor for the Woolsey scholarship. In April, 1857, his studies were interrupted by ill health, and he spent three years in travel in the Southern and Western States. When his strength was sufficiently reëstablished he made the journey on horseback to Williamstown, Mass., entered the Junior class at Williams College, and graduated there in 1862.

On February 24, 1863, he married Sarah L., daughter of Charles D. Kingsbury. The same month he was elected to the professorship of Latin and French in his alma mater, and immediately went abroad for travel and study. In January, 1865, he began his new work. In 1868 he was relieved of the task of instruction in French, but remained Professor of Latin until July, 1872, when he was elected to the professorship of German in Yale College. After another year spent in Europe he entered upon his duties in Yale, September, 1873. While there he wrote and published various articles on subjects connected with the German language and literature, and in 1879 published an edition of Goëthe's "Iphigenie auf Tauris." He received the degree of Ph.D. from his alma mater in 1877, and that of LL.D. from Union College, 1881.

In February, 1881, Professor Carter was elected President of Williams College, and was inaugurated in July of the same year. His inaugural address excited general interest because of the emphasis it placed upon the study of Hebrew history and Jewish ideas of our colleges, and his suggestions on that subject have been widely adopted. Under his administration Williams College has gained in every direction. Her teaching force has been greatly enlarged, and may be favorably compared with that of any of our colleges. Her friends have been multiplied, and her equipment in buildings and apparatus much improved. It has been the aim of President Carter to hold the institution faithful to the best traditions of the New England college; to keep prominent the element of personal guidance by the professors, and at the same time to multiply and enrich the advantages offered to each student. He has been to a marked degree successful in realizing this ideal.

kins in the "American Religious Leaders" series; Boston, 1892. [History of Waterbury.]

He resigned the Presidency of Williams College in 1901, but continued acting-President in 1902.

Military Academy, 1844; Second Lieutenant, Second Infantry; Assistant Professor of Ethics at West Point from August, 1845, to May, 1846; served in the war with Mexico, and brevetted First Lieutenant for gallantry at Contreras and Cherubusco, and Captain for gallantry at Molino del Rey; he was appointed assistant instructor of infantry tactics at West Point, August, 1848; resigned March 25, 1855. He was superintendent of construction of the Chicago Custom House in 1855, and Colonel of the volunteers raised in Illinois in that year for the Utah expedition, but not mustered into service. He then practiced law in Kentucky, and after the civil war began he was made commander of the State Guard of Kentucky, and Adjutant-General of the State. On September 12, 1861, he issued from Russellville an address to the people of Kentucky.

* Old residents who attended the ceremony say Lieutenant Buckner was a dashing-looking young fellow, and in his new uniform looked every inch a soldier. Just as the officiating clergyman pronounced the final words of the service there was an alarm of fire; a neighbor's house was burning. The bridegroom threw off his coat, and with the minister and guests ran to extinguish the flames. Lieutenant Buckner rendered efficient aid, and bravely rescued an aged colored servant from the burning house. Then he returned, resumed his coat, kissed his bride, and received the congratulations of his friends.

1190 Colonel Henry Walter⁷ Kingsbury (*Julius J. B.*⁶, *John*⁵, *Nathaniel*⁴, *Joseph*³, *Joseph*², *Henry*¹), lived at various stations with his parents until old enough to be sent to school. After which time he spent most of his vacations with his cousin, Frederick J. Kingsbury, in Waterbury, Conn. He was at Mr. Churchill's school at Sing Sing, and under the kindly care of Mr. and Mrs. Churchill he developed most favorably from a boy into a man. He was a good scholar, and he formed a steadfast character with the highest principles, and the most exacting sense of duty. He had been fitted with special reference to West Point, and received his cadet appointment through the kindness of Hon. S. J. T. Stranahan of Brooklyn. At West Point he at once took a high position in his class, and in his last year was Adjutant of the Corps. He was much indebted for his ideals to the influence of his brother-in-law, General Simon B. Buckner, with whom he spent a portion of the last year before going to West Point. His class was graduated prematurely on account of the breaking out of the war, and he immediately reported for duty, and fought with a battery of artillery in the first battle of Bull Run. He was transferred to the staff of Major-General McDowell, and acted as his Chief aide de camp for some months. During the siege of Yorktown and the battles around Richmond he had a command in Griffin's battery, and immediately after he took command as Colonel of the Eleventh Connecticut Infantry, then with Burnside in North Carolina. His predecessor in command of the Regiment was his father's cousin, Colonel Thomas H. C. Kingsbury, an elderly man who was soon retired from physical disability. The similarity of names has led to some confusion in biographical sketches. He led his regiment with great bravery at Antietam in the famous attack on the stone bridge, was severely wounded, and again struck by a ball, while being carried to the rear. He died September 18, 1862.

Ernst Westermann

“He had hardly been with his regiment two months at the time of his death, but during that short period he had given them great efficiency, and had inspired them with a confidence in their youthful leader little short of devotion. Before he had been in camp two weeks it was filled with little characteristic anecdotes of him, which formed the staple of conversation of the men during their leisure hours. Such as,—how he visited the tents in the night to see that the men were properly cared for. How he superintended the cook, and gave instruction for the preparation of the food. How he ordered solid breakfasts and light suppers, and instructed the cook in the use of rice. How he ordered the tenderloin steaks which were reserved for the officers to be given to the men, saying that his men must be fed as well as any of his officers. How he inspected very minutely a sergeant who had accounted himself with much care, and finally detected one tarnished button on his cap, and so, under the guise of a reprimand, paid a compliment which went straight to the sergeant's heart. In short he had made himself the hero and the idol of his men—where he would lead they were ready to follow. Brave, generous, and affectionate, yet calm, cautious, and self-contained, enjoying the fullest confidence of his superiors as well as the devotion of his men, he combined talents which seemed peculiarly to fit him for high military command." [F. J. K.]

He married, December 4, 1861, Eva, daughter of General Joseph P. Taylor, and niece of President Zachary Taylor. She is now living in Belgium, having been married four times; her second husband was Colonel Albert Gallatin Lawrence, of Newport; the third, Amadée van den Nest, attaché of the Belgian Legation in Washington, and afterwards of the Belgian Legation in Egypt; the fourth, — Hutton.

General Burnside's General Order announcing Colonel Kingsbury's death:

Special Order No. 47—

Headquarters 9th Army Corps.

Mouth of Antietam, Md., September 28, 1862.

The Commanding General announces to the 11th Regiment Conn. Volunteers the death of their late commander, Col. H. W. Kingsbury. By this sad calamity the army mourns one of the most accomplished of those young officers who in a few months have become veterans in their country's service. After serving with distinction through the campaign in the Peninsula, Col. Kingsbury was promoted to his late command, and in that office, occupying positions of great responsibility, he invariably proved himself equal to the occasion, displaying always a gallantry and skill that gave high promise for his future. He received his death-wound while bravely leading his men at the battle of Antietam. As a near friend of Col. Kingsbury, the Commanding General wishes to add his testimony to his private worth, to the purity of his character, and to the possession of those high qualities of mind and heart that form the sterling man as well as the finished soldier.

General Washington presented it to Ira Stephens, who was a soldier in his army. From him it has descended through the various generations of the Stephens family to Ira E. Stephens, of Towanda, Pa. Mr. Stephens has presented this old heirloom to the Tioga Point Historical Society, upon the following conditions: Mr. Stephens reserves the right of control and possession during his life, should he ever desire to exercise it; at his death the glass is to become the property of the Society to hold as long as the Society exists. Should the Society cease to exist, then the glass is to become the property of the eldest male heir of Mr. Stephens. This is a generous and graceful act on the part of Mr. Stephens, and one which is highly appreciated by the Historical Society. The Society is to be congratulated upon being the recipient of such an historic and valuable gift. At one time Judge Peters, of Philadelphia, wishing to secure the glass for Independence Hall, offered Mr. Stephens $25,000 for it.

1328 Joseph Coroden⁷ Kingsbury (Solomon⁶, Lemuel⁵, Joseph⁴, Nathaniel³, Joseph², Henry¹), of Salt Lake City, Utah. He joined the Mormons, and was one of the first colony that settled in Utah; an Elder in the Mormon Church; married (1), February 3, 1836, Caroline Whitney, a relative of Bishop Whitney, born March 10, 1816; died October 16, 1842, in Nauvoo; (2), March 4, 1845, Dorcas Adelia Moore, born January 22, 1829; (3), January 27, 1846, Loenza A. Pond, born February 15, 1830; (4), September 26, 1870, Eliza Partridge, born February, 1842. He died in Salt Lake City, October 15, 1898.

The following sketch of his career is condensed from Tullidge's History of Salt Lake City, published in 1886, by authority of the City Council.

[About 1830, when Joseph Coroden Kingsbury was a clerk in a store in Ashtabula, O., that neighborhood was greatly stirred with the news of the "golden bible" found by Joseph Smith. While Kingsbury was yet a lad he became acquainted with Newel K. Whitney, who was afterwards the presiding bishop of the Mormon Church, and in 1831, when he removed to Kirtland, O., he came again under the influence of Whitney. After the labors of the day were over he would spend his evenings at the home of Elder Whitney, from whose lips and the inspired memory of "Mother Whitney" he heard related more fully the wonderful narrative of Joseph the Prophet. The following year young K. began his business relationship with the presiding bishop of the church. He belonged to a certain class of elders who were employed in the temporal government of the Aaronic Priesthood. At the laying of the corner-stone of the Kirtland Temple he was ordained an elder under the hands of the Prophet. Next he was ordained one of the high council of the Kirtland Stake, which signifies that he was one of the first high council in the church. He removed to Missouri in 1838, and remained there through all the wars and mobbings, until the Saints were expelled. He then went to Nauvoo, where he was in the Tithing Office under Bishop Whitney as his assistant. He was one of the Pioneer Band which started for the Rocky Mountains in 1847, and he is considered one of the founders of Salt Lake City. He was counsellor to Bishop Lowry, and July 13, 1851, he was ordained to the office of a bishop, and as bishop of the Second Ward he was one of the original bishops of Salt Lake City. In 1860 began his long connection with the General Tithing Store of the church in Utah. In 1867 he was appointed general superintendent of the Tithing Office under the direction of the late presiding bishop, Edward Hunter. It was a position of great trust, requiring much care, patience, and impartiality in dealing with the people and the public lands, that they might be satisfied.

January 25, 1883, he was ordained a patriarch under the hands of Apostles Woodruff and Richards. He may properly be considered as one of the representative men of the Mormon Church.]

He married, February 5, 1861, Charlotte Martha Field, born May 28, 1835, daughter of William Morton and Minerva Kimball (Davenport) Field, of Brandon, Vt. He received the degree of D.D. from his alma mater in 1876. He has written a number of books, including a History of Bradford. In 1900 Dr. Kingsbury celebrated the anniversary of his settlement at Bradford, and the following graceful tribute appeared in the Haverhill Daily Bulletin:

“But few, if any, clergymen in New England have had a more successful quarter of a century pastorate than Rev. J. D. Kingsbury, D.D., of Bradford. In fact, only a comparatively few pastors in all New England can recount twenty-five years of labor in a single parish. Such cases are rare, and when one can be found in these days of changes, it is doubly worthy of mention. That of the Bradford pastor is as beautiful as it is rare. Beautiful, because so satisfactory to the people among whom he has labored to build up the Redeemer's kingdom. Rev. Dr. Kingsbury is a pastor in the broadest and deepest meaning of that term. In him are combined all those qualifications necessary for the momentous and sacred work devolving upon an ambassador of Christ. Very often we hear it said by people, in speaking of ministers, that such a one is an excellent speaker in the pulpit, but a poor pastor; or, a good pastor, but a poor sermonizer. But nothing of the kind can be applied to the Bradford man of God, who has so successfully presided over the Congregational Church in that town for a period of twenty-five years. It has also been said of him that he never preached a sermon without presenting thought worthy to be written in letters of gold, and that at times his eloquence in utterance reaches the highest point of finish. He is an impressive speaker, and always holds the close attention of his hearers from beginning to the end of his discourses. Dr. Kingsbury is a pastor in a broad and delightful sense, away from the pulpit, among his people. His genial and affable manners assure him a cordial welcome in every home. Especially is he welcomed at the bedside of the sick. As one who knows him intimately has said: 'He is a wonderful man in sickness'; and he is one of the few who know how to enter a sick room, and when to leave it. But besides being an excellent pastor Dr. Kingsbury is a good citizen. He possesses executive ability of a high order, and knows how things ought to be done. His judgment seems to be unerring in all the questions that come before him; when convinced that a thing is right, he never hesitates to make it known. He possesses a wonderful faculty of adaptation and application. For twenty-five years no rumor of discontent has been heard in his parish, and nobody desires a change. Favored must be the pastor with such a society, and happy must be the people with such a pastor."

January 1, 1901, Dr. Kingsbury severed his connection with the Church in Bradford, although he retains the position of Pastor Emeritus, and he is now acting as Special Representative of the Executive Committee of the Congregational Home Missionary Society on the Missionary Field, and Superintendent of Southern Idaho, Utah, New Mexico, and Arizona, still retaining his home in Bradford.

J.; she died January 5, 1851, and he married (2), September 29, 1856, Annah Harris Stratton, of Mount Holly, N. J., daughter of Dr. Benjamin H. Stratton. He died in Philadelphia October 3, 1891.

He was eight years old at the time of his mother's second marriage, and he lived on his stepfather's farm at Guildhall, Vt., until he was sixteen. He early developed a great love of books, and attended the Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, and Newbury Seminary, Vt., until at eighteen he was nearly fitted for college. During the winter of 1837-8, he taught school in East Windsor, Conn., and in 1838 he went to Trenton, N. J., intending to teach another year before entering college, and formed the acquaintance of Dr. Nath'l Brown, a dentist of that city. He became a student with Dr. Brown, at the same time teaching in Trenton, and in the spring of 1839 he relinquished his engagement as a teacher and began the practice of dentistry. It is stated that he was probably the first dentist who successfully applied an electrical current to alleviate the pain of aching teeth. He opened an office in Bordentown, N. J., in 1841, and in the fall of the same year he removed to Philadelphia, where he soon obtained a fine practice. In 1842, yielding to a conviction of duty which had been steadily growing upon him since his conversion at the age of fifteen, he entered the Methodist ministry, and was assigned to Haddonfield, N. J. But malarial and bronchial troubles so completely shattered his system he was obliged to give up pulpit labor, and after three years at H. he removed to Mount Holly, N. J., where he resumed his dental practice, and also studied medicine, graduating from the Philadelphia College of Medicine. In 1857 he removed to Philadelphia. In 1863 he was active in the founding of the Philadelphia Dental College, and he held the chair of dental physiology and operative dentistry for many years. He helped to organize the American Dental Association, the Odontographic Society of Pennsylvania, of which he was the first Vice-President, and its second President; he was a member of the Pennsylvania Association of Surgeon Dentists, and of the Academy of Natural Sciences. In 1867 he took a long and leisurely tour in Europe, and had many and strong inducements held out to him to remain and practice abroad. While in Damascus the famous Abd-el-Kader desired his services, but for want of dental instruments he was obliged to decline. He published many valuable essays in the line of his specialty, mostly contributed to Dental Cosmos. [Stiles' History of Ancient Windsor, II, 426-7.]

[Addison Kingsbury is one of the most noted and successful paper box manufacturers in New England. The business includes the product from five factories, which are located in South Coventry, Rockville, New London, and Willimantic in this State, and at Northampton, Mass. Mr. Kingsbury is the inventor of the machine for cutting the blanks for the boxes. The industry was started at South Coventry in 1868 and rapidly developed, becoming in the course of a dozen years one of extensive proportions and standing. Millions of boxes are now turned out annually by aid of the machinery devised by Mr. Kingsbury. In 1880, after having established an extensive plant at Rockville, the far-sighted manager of the industry located a factory at Northampton. In 1883 Arthur L. Kingsbury was admitted to the firm, and has since been an active partner in its interests and business. In 1885 Mr. Kingsbury invented a gluing machine which is still in use, and also the machine for cutting box blanks. These inventions have contributed materially to the firm's success. The combined production of the firm's factories amounts to upwards of two million boxes a year, giving employment to over 150 hands and doing over $100,000 business annually. One of the specialties by which Messrs. Kingsbury achieved their success is the furnishing of printed labels with the boxes. The founder of the business is also interested in the Kingsbury & Davis Machine Company of Contocook, N. H., which turns out the machine he invented for cutting blanks, as well as other paper-box machinery. He has spent much of his time in New York and is a gentleman of wide business acquaintance. Mr. Kingsbury was born at South Coventry, November 15, 1835, and received a common and select school education. He began life as an accountant, but the most of his business career has been in connection with his paper-box industry and inventions. In politics he is a Republican. He is connected with the Congregational Church.—Illustrated Popular Biography of Connecticut, 1891.]

Rev. Ebenezer Kingsbury. Part of the sketch concerning him, by Rev. Mr. Miller, before the Presbytery of Lacawamice :

“As a preacher, Mr. Kingsbury was grave and deliberate in manner, and instructive in matter. In social intercourse he was affable, unassuming and regardful of the feelings and interests of others. He was a welcome visitor in families; and from such visits, social or religious, he derived much enjoyment. These characteristics of his nature and habits rendered him acceptable as a pastor and missionary. He loved to look up the families scattered over our hills. They gave him their confidence and a cordial welcome, while he made himself at home with parents and children. Hence it is not surprising to find frequent record of his services in gathering and organizing churches. Of our churches, more were formed by him than any other minister. In their trials, subsequently, he became their prominent counsellor and helper.

Also from the address of Rev. W. S. Tyler, of Amherst College, at the semi-centennial celebration of Rev. Adam Miller's pastorate in Harford, Pennsylvania :

“Rev. Ebenezer Kingsbury, the only minister whom I associate with that desk, the only pastor I ever had in Harford, who was settled the very year I was born, and dismissed only a year or two before I went to college, I always think of; not as the greatest, or most learned, or eloquent, but as one of the best, kindest, gentlest, and most saintly men that I have ever known. I can see him now, just as I used to see him every Sunday in my boyhood, walking past my father's house long before anyone else came to meeting (for he always walked, though he lived a full mile from the meeting house, and was always there a full half hour before the service began). He wore a black silk robe or minister's gown, and always had in his hand when he passed our house, and when he preached—it seems now as though he always held it in his hand—the little black morocco-bound Bible out of which he read the Scriptures for the day and in which was carefully placed the two-leaved manuscript on which were written all the notes he ever used in preaching. Dear old man,—it seems to me as if he was always old,—I can never think of him as jesting, or laughing, hardly as sinning, or ever changing,—he always seems to me the same unchangeable impersonation of real goodness."

Also from the same address, this concerns the wife of Rev. Mr. Kingsbury :

"Nor can I forget or fail to mention Mrs. Kingsbury, the wife of Rev. Mr. Kingsbury (herself the daughter of a Connecticut clergyman, kinswoman of the Willistons, the Storrses, the Paysons, and the Elys of New England), who contributed largely to introduce into Hartford the culture, the refinement and the piety which distinguished her honored ancestry and which shone with equal brightness in her own family here, even when the town was little else than a wilderness."

Two of Rev. Mr. Kingsbury's sons were Rev. Mr. Tyler's early teachers — N. Williston and Samuel Ely K. In this same address Mr. Tyler speak thus of Williston:

"I shall always think of him as one of Nature's noblemen, so manly and noble was his form, and such was the true nobility of his mind and character. He died too soon, alas! for his friends and his native place, too young for his usefulness here, but doubtless not too young for his whole work in the immortal hereafter."

Rev. Mr. Kingsbury used to say he liked to hear a baby cry in meeting, for then he knew the mother was there.

Lucius M. Boltwood of Grand Rapids, Mich., who formerly lived in Amherst, writes to Mr. J. H. Benton: "The Kingburys were very excellent godly people. Deacon Kingsbury was an old theology man, and had no patience with new measures or 'Taylorism.' They were all very plain people. There was a streak of oddity in the family, in which the father and mother and daughter Mary certainly shared. Deacon Kingsbury was afraid of the theological soundness of Prof. E. A. Park, then of Amherst College, and Prof. Park's name on one occasion being mentioned in his presence, Deacon Kingsbury exclaimed, 'Oh, he is very unsound.' 'How so?' he was asked. 'Why,' said the Deacon, 'he believes that man is a moral agent.' 'Well, don't you believe so?' asked his friend. 'No, indeed,' replied the good Deacon, 'I believe that he is an immoral agent!'"

The Kingburys were all their lives in quite limited circumstances. He owned a small farm in Alstead, and appears to have owned their home in the various places where they lived, and he had a small amount of real estate when he died at Amherst.

GEORGE NELSON KINGSBURY.

George Nelson Kingsbury, of Providence, Rhode Island, was born in Providence on December 14, 1854, son of George Nelson and Sarah Burdick (Eldredge) Kingsbury. He was educated in the public schools of his native city. In early life he entered the employ of the Richmond Manufacturing Company, and for eleven years was connected with the Crompton Company, both prominent manufacturers of high grade cotton goods, and the latter the pioneer in the manufacture of fustians and velveteens in the United States. For a period of nine years, Mr. Kingsbury was the New England representative of R. T. Wilson and Company, bankers and commission merchants of New York, and later he represented a number of leading American manufacturers in the European capitals.

Mr. Kingsbury represented Rhode Island as Executive Commissioner at the Pan-American Exposition, at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1901, and again at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, at St. Louis, in 1904. In both instances he was the unanimous choice of the Commissions appointed to exhibit the resources of Rhode Island at these Expositions, and to his energy and executive ability was due, in great measure, the success of the representation of his native State at these international exhibitions. He is a member of the Providence Board of Trade, and deeply interested in the prosperity of his native city.

LAND BELONGING TO THE KINGSBURYS.

Kingsbury Marsh in the Freshet of Patuxent River, Calvert Co.

Robert Kingsbury, north side of Patuxent River, land of Robert Kingsbury, in Goldron's swamp. "Ordinary," surveyed in 1664 for Robert Kingsbury, east side of Patuxent.

Robert Kingsbury, north side of Patuxent. "Land Creek" and "Brooke Battle," part of "His Lordship's gift," land belonging to Robert Kingsbury: apparently including his "Back Pasture," granted 1664

"Land's Creek." held by James Kingsbury for the Evans orphans, held earlier by Robert Kingsbury. "Evans Raye," west side of Patuxent, possessor in 1713, Dr. James Kingsbury, of Ann Arundel Co. for orphans of R^d Evans.

There was a place called Kingsbury on Gunpowder Creek, north of Baltimore.

Robert Kingsbury had a patent of land lying near the head of Back River, an estuary of the Chesapeake, lying between the Patapsco River and the Big Gunpowder River. The head of Back River is a considerable distance from the Little Gunpowder or Gunpowder Creek.

In 1713, Kingsbury's Marsh, for some reason not apparent, is found on the Rent Rolls of Lord Baltimore's estates in the Province of Maryland, escheat to his Lordship, and was resurveyed for Thomas Tasker as early as 1682.

Also in 1713; Kingsbury's Back Pasture, likewise escheat to the Lord Proprietary, is resurveyed for Richard Smith.

About this date, they (the Iron Works,) seem to have gone into the possession of Major Thomas Sherridine whose dwelling Plantation was Kingsbury Resurveyed, near the Iron Works or Kingsbury's Furnace. In 1775 George Matthews offers to give information as to the manufacture of Iron guns, writing from Kingsbury. In June the Council write "Lieut. Moore has made known to us that there are wanting for the artillery here, 200 four pound balls &c. These are cast at the Kingsberry Furnace, and we request you to expedite them as soon as possible"

RÉSUMÉ OF NOTES ON MARYLAND KINGSBURYS.

Robert Kingsbury, the only one of his name to be found on the Register of Early Colonists, arrived in Maryland in 1651, bringing with him Mary, his wife, Elizabeth Wells and Edward Wells, his children. He also transported eight other persons, settling in what was then Anne Arundell County, laid out in 1650, and from which shortly after his arrival Calvert County was taken, 1654. As the last named County lay on both sides of the Patuxent, when Charles County was erected in 1658, the southernmost part of the county went into that division, while still later, in 1695, Prince George's County was taken from Charles. This mention is made here, as the Kingsburys would appear to have moved, whereas their location remained very much the same for nearly a century, only the legal style and title changing.

The Province was in a state of great unrest. The Parliamentary forces were nearing the height of their triumph and Lord Baltimore had placed all important offices in the hands of Protestants. A large number of Colonists came in about this time under the leadership of William Stone, who was made Governor, and of the five hundred settlers he had promised toward the increase of colonization, many came in, as he did, from Virginia. Other detachments arrived from the Mother country in the wake of Robert Brooke and men who brought many followers. Robert Kingsbury was among these, and probably because of the unsettled condition of the Province, and the entire loss of power by the Lord Proprietary, his Demand Warrant for land under head rights was not made out until 1663. That he was seated in Calvert County as early as 1654, is shown by a reference in the Rent Rolls of Lord Baltimore, which locates another plantation "near the land of Robert Kingsbury." In 1661 his home seems to have been an important point in military operations, since order is given that the "Rendezvous of the men to be rayzed in St. Mary's Charles and Calvert Counties, be at Robert Kingsburys." In 1663 he demands land, evidently the tract on which he had been living since his arrival in the Province, and to which some intermediate title had been given by the Commissioners who held the Colony "under, and in the name of the Keepers of the Liberties of England, by authority of Parliament." His original warrant is made out for land on the east side of the Patuxent, and can be identified today. The three small dots at the head of Land's Creek,* representing the plantations of Hall, Evans, and Kingsbury. Later he demands additional land by reason of his transportation of others into this Province, here to inhabit, making in all of this first parcell 759 acres, known as the Ordinary. In 1664 he became involved in litigation with one Thomas Paget, from whom he had purchased 200 acres additional, and to which he is refused possession, when he petitions the Provincial Court for writ of ejectment. In 1664 a warrant is made out for a new grant on the north side of the Patuxent Back Pasture, for which patent is issued. Complications arose, for in 1668 we find that assignment is made of the Ordinary, from Samuel Kingsbury, to Thomas Claggett. No other mention can be found of Samuel, and in 1671 letters of administration are granted to his old foe, Thomas Paget, on "all and singular the goods and chattels of Robert Kingsbury of Calvert County. Later appraysement returned."

James Kingsbury, Doctor of Physick, is the next person mentioned, and signs in Nov. 1689 the address of the inhabitants of Charles County to their Gracious Majesties, King William and Queen Mary. In 1687 a Jonas or James Kingsbury, (the entry is almost illegible,) had litigation with one Richard Land, while in 1691 Dr. James Kingsbury, of Charles County, Gentleman, purchases from Thomas Gibson, of the same County, a valuable tract of land, as is known from others in patents in the same neighborhood, a portion of this tract, having been set apart for a Town in 1684. At the next Assembly, the locality having been found unsuitable, it was untowned by a subsequent Act of the Assembly.

*Hermans' Map.

Between 1691 and 1704 Dr. James Kingsbury married Elizabeth Evans formerly the wife of Richard Evans, who had been one of the settlers on Land's Creek, the Halls, Kingsburys, and Evans, having been neighbors, their plantations lying on the banks of the above named stream, which is known today as Hall's Creek. In 1704 James Kingsbury et Uxor, take out letters of administration on the estate of Richard Evans, of Calvert County, deceased. In 1705 he renders account to the Provincial Court, and appears later as possessor of several tracts of land, for Richard's orphans.

In 1724 James and Elizabeth execute a deed of gift to their sons James and John, of land in Cecil County. This deed sets forth the fact that Elizabeth was the daughter of Richard Hall, one of the most prominent men in that part of the Province. He held many positions of importance, and was a member of the Lower House for several successive sessions.

On April 17, 1684, the entry is made "Mr. Richard Hall and Mr. William Richardson, members of this House, are denied entrance into the Upper House by the Doorkeeper, Except they would Putt of there Hatts." This would seem to denote that these gentlemen belonged to the Quakers.

In 1724 James Kingsbury made his will, which was probated in 1726. No further mention is found of him, apart from the accounts which James Jr. and Elizabeth make to the Court of their administration, until 1731, when James and John, his sons, convey to Elihu Hall of Anne Arundel, the land in Cecil County.

In 1738 James Kingsbury of Calvert County conveys Northwick,* in Baltimore County, to Daniel Dulany of Annapolis, and in 1743 Elizabeth Kingsbury makes her will, leaving James her executor. The estate was settled in 1746. In 1753 James makes deed of cattle to "loving son John," Prince George's County. In 1753 James and Anne his wife deed to Samuel Evans a tract of land, Kingsbury's Cultivation, in Calvert County, near Evans Range, on Land's Creek. In the next few years we find in the Parish Register of Prince George Parish, Prince George's County, the name of Demilion Kingsbury; mention is also made of Gabriel Kingsbury of Annapolis, but these are so fragmentary as to be of little use. About this time mention is made of Kingsbury Furnace which played quite an important part in the War of the Revolution.

John, presumably son of James, appears on the Records, A.D. 1773, as conveying to a certain John Glassfield and Co. one lott of land, lying in the addition to Georgetown, then in Frederick County, now in the District of Columbia.

From Land Office, Prince George County: "Indenture between John Kingsbury, of Prince George County, coachmaker, and George F. Magruder, Basil Magruder, Thomas Magruder, the last being sureties for John Kingsbury, who assigns two lots in Marlborough to above-named sureties," July 3, 1771.

Of the connections, the Halls have been and still are among the oldest and best families in the State, as are also the descendants of the children mentioned in the wills: Grooms, Pottingers, Bealls, Magruders, McGills, and Bowies of Prince George's County.

During the Revolution there was a Captain John Kingsbury of the Artillery in the North Carolina Line, Continental Army. He was perhaps the Captain of Artillery at Fells' Point in 1779, mentioned on page 585, and it seems likely that he belonged to the Maryland family.

There was a John Kingsbury very early in Virginia. "Certificate of Head Rights, Virginia, 5 July, 1642, Lieut. Francis Mason for transporting John Kingsberrie et al. Virginia Archives, XLVII, 63. [The planters were granted so many acres of land for each person they brought over.]

There was another John Kingsbury on Long Island at a later date:

"Joseph Paine, of Southampton, weaver, deeds to John Kingsbury, of Southold, Taylor, all that home lot bounded with Benj. Youngs West, y^e Main Street North, East by land that was formerly Thomas Moors, South by land that was formerly old Mr. Glover's." Dated, Aug. 11, 1712. There is also a release of dower in the same from John and Abigail Danes. Southold Town Records, II, 444.

came thence a certain Thomas Kyngesburye, a monk of that place at the time of the dissolution, and for a long time previously. We, wishing to bestow upon the said Thomas a worthy annual pension or suitable allowance for his support and better maintenance. Know ye, therefore, that we, in consideration of our promises, of our special grace and with full knowledge and of our own motion, with the advice of the Chancellor and Court of Augmentation of the Revenues of our Crown, have given and conceded and by these presents do give and concede to the said Thomas an annuity or annual pension of £33. 6^s. 8^d. sterling.

A grant, in similar terms, dated 12 May, 31 Hen. VIII (A. D. 1540), a few months earlier in the same year, gives a yearly pension of £5 to Richard Kyngesburye alias Sherman, who at the time of the dissolution was, and for a long time before had been, a monk of the Abbey of Forde in the County of Devon.

(Saint Albans was a monastery of the Benedictine order, and it seems quite probable that Thomas Kyngesburye, to whom the pension was assigned, was the same person as "Thomas Kyngesbery, Benedictine," who proceeded to the degree of B.D. at Oxford, March 4, 1511-12. (See Boase, Register Univ. Oxon, p. 44.) The registers are missing for 1464-1504, both inclusive, so that particulars of Kyngesburye's previous degrees cannot be ascertained. Thomas Kyngesbery received a formal appointment as Archdeacon and Commissary from Robert Cotton, the Abbot, in 1531. In 1536 the words "Auctoritate Regiæ" are added to his title, and then follows William Estis' appointment in 1537. Nichol's Collectanea Genealogica.

ENGLISH ADDENDA.

Various particulars have been collected relating to the name of Kingsbury in England, and some of the individuals can be identified in the wills given on pages 42-70.

Sir Charles Montague Ormsby, Kt. and Bart., Barrister at Law, born April 23, 1767, died 1818, mar. Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Kingsbury, Esq.; marriage license dated June 21, 1794. Sir Charles was knighted Jan., 1806, created a Baronet, Dec. 20, 1812. Miscellanea Heraldica et Genealogica, II, 177, Second Series. This is very probably the same family as that of Dr. Thomas Kingsbury, Fellow of the King and Queen's College of Physicians, Ireland, son of Thomas Kingsbury, Esq., descended from County Dorset. Dr. Thomas Kingsbury, of Anglesea Street, Dublin, 1742, was appointed executor on the estate of Dr. Claudius Gilbert, who was Vice-Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, 1716-1735.

OLD FAMILY LETTERS.

LETTER FROM COL. JACOB KINGSBURY TO HIS BROTHER.

DEAR BROTHER :

This moment affords an opportunity of communicating some of my best wishes to you, which are these: the blessings of health, the enjoyment of peace, and the cheerful countenances of the fair sex, and your speedy return to college, so much for an introduction.

You will find by this short epistle, the continuance of my health, could I be favored with a line from you or any of my friends, it would be a great satisfaction to me. I had a line from you by Roger Edgerton, which is the only letter I have had from home since I left Norwich. Be assured, dear Brother, that I am never unmindfull of my friends and relations in the country, and a line from you is like a cordial to a dying person. (As for news I have none.) I would have wrote a few more lines but Mr. Jeremiah Clement is waiting, who is the bearer of this, he is here on a visit from Norwich. From

Garrison's,

West Point,

May 13, 1783.

Your dear brother,

J. KINGSBURY.

Please give duty to parents, love to brothers and sisters, and due respects to all. I must omit writing to the rest of my brothers for want of time.

Addressed : Mr. John Kingsbury

Norwich West Farms.

Hon^d by Mr Clement.

LETTERS FROM COL. JACOB KINGSBURY TO ANDREW KINGSBURY, ESQ^r.

FORT WILKINSON, ON THE BANK OF THE OCONEE RIVER,
STATE OF GEORGIA,

22nd August, 1802.

DEAR SIR :

I received Orders from the Secretary of war the beginning of last April to take command of this Garrison. I left Franklin the 28th of April with my family, and proceeded to New York by water, and arrived on the first of May, remained in New York until the 15th, then Embarked on board the Brig Triall for Savannah, where we arrived on the first of June, after a passage Seventeen days. We had a great part of our voyage head winds or a Calm, we had one severe Gale in the Gulf Stream, which obliged us to Scud, and drove us back a number of Leagues. From Savannah we took the Stage to Augusta, and put up at the best Tavern in the State, kept by M^r Ashton, whose wife is a native of Hartford, and a relation of Major Burr. Augusta is a very regular built inland Town, Situated about One Hundred and Thirty Miles from the Town of Savannah, on a river of the same name. The regular Stage does not run any further into the country than Augusta, consequently I was necessitated to hire a carriage to convey me to Fort Wilkinson, at which place I arrived on the 24th of June, when I had the pleasure of seeing General Wilkinson, who had with the other Commissioners just concluded a Treaty with the Creek Indians, for a Tract of Land laying on the west side of the Oconee. If the Treaty is ratified it is probable this Garrison will be moved back to the new Boundary line next spring. I met with a kind reception by the General, who gave me the command of this Garrison on the 30th of June. I mustered the whole of the Troops, and discharged all the Supernumerary Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and privates, and put five Companies into Three, with Seventy Six men in each Company, Exclusive of Officers, which gives me a command of about Two Hundred and Forty men, Including Officers, I am much pleased with my command, and prefer it to recruiting. The Situation of this Fort is beautifull, it is built on an Eminence, about Two Hundred Yards from the Oconee River, on the West bank, and overlooks the Adjacent Country, which is hilly and well watered. My men enjoy better health than I have ever known Troops at this season of the Year, which gives me reason to suppose it a healthy Situation. I have only Seventeen Sick, and none dangerous. I have an Elegant garden with a Fish pond in the Center, and have a great variety of Vegetables of every kind which you have at the Northward. My family all enjoy perfect health, and appear to be contented with their Situation, and join with me in respects to yourself and family. Please to write immediately by mail. I am yours

NEWLONDON, CONNECTICUT,

11th December, 1813.

DEAR SIR :

I have now the satisfaction of writing you from this place, where I am as pleasantly situated as I could wish, except being absent from my family a great part of my time, which is disagreeable; my duty is not severe, I have to Muster and Inspect the Troops Monthly, and report to the Secretary of War at Washington. I calculated to have left Newlondon this day for Franklin, but cannot leave this place at present; and I fear not until our Ships go to Sea; The Frigates United States and Macedonian, and the Hornet Sloop of War, are now at Anchor in the Harbour, and are still Blockaded by a British Squadron, laying near the mouth of the River; Commodore Decature intends if possible to pass the British Fleet, and put to Sea, but I fear it will not be in his power; Should he not go to Sea this Winter, I think it altogether probable, that as soon as the River is Frozen across sufficient to prevent our Ships going up; That the British will endeavour to pass our Forts and burn them; should they attempt it we shall undoubtedly do our best to prevent them, but what would be the result of such an undertaking is, in my mind quite uncertain. What do you think of the Montreal Expedition? I think it is now well understood at Head Quarters, Washington, that fifteen Hundred of our men cannot take Quebec, nor even go to Montreal, unless they go as prisoners of War; I heard it hinted by a Member of Congress when I was at Washington a few days before War was declared, that a very few men was amply sufficient to take Canada, all that was necessary to be done was to march a small number of Troops into Canada, raise the American Standard, and offer the inhabitants their Liberty and freedom from British Tyranny, if they would fly to the Standard of the United States, and receive protection; I did not agree with the Honorable member in opinion; he consequently I suppose, thought I was a Coward, or fond of the British Government!

I should be happy to receive a line from you — please to present my Compliments to M^r Kingsbury and family, and believe me to remain,

With unfeigned esteem,

Your friend & Serv^t

INSPECTOR'S OFFICE,
NEWLONDON, CONNECTICUT,
4th April, 1814.

DEAR SIR:

I had the pleasure of hearing, a few days ago, that you had so far recovered your health, as to be able to walk out; I was confined to my bed with a pain in my side, for several days after I arrived at Franklin from Hartford; but have in a great measure recovered. It is rumoured at this place, that part of the Officers of the Army are to be disbanded; should that be the case, I shall probably be one, as I am from age, and long service, unable to take the field. I have within a few days past made a contract with a Carpenter, to build me a home, that is, to dig a Cellar 42 feet by 37, eight feet in the clear, and Stone it, and put up a frame, and cover and paint it, and build Two Stacks of Chimneys, with Nine fire places, the house is to stand at the South end within two feet of where the North end of the old home stood, there is about two feet of earth on the Ground, and the remainder Six feet is to be blown out of a Rock. I have been fourteen years considering whether it is best to build, and have at length concluded that a good home would be convenient, and have Consequently concluded to build it on a Rock, in preference to a Sandy foundation. The Cellar and out Side of the house, and Chimneys, are to be completed by the 20th of next November, for which I am to pay Two Thousand Dollars. I paid four Hundred on Signing the agreement, and am to pay Two Hundred when the house is raised, and two Hundred more when the Chimneys are completed, and Twelve Hundred Dollars the 20th of next November, when the work is to be completed. The Carpenter finds all the materials, except the Frame, which he is to cut on my land, and pay me what it is worth standing in the woods. Please to write and tell me whether I give the Carpenter too much, and how you like the plan of the house. Please to make my best respects to M^{rs} Kingsbury, and family, and believe me to remain,

With unfeigned Esteem

LETTER FROM MAJOR J. J. B. KINGSBURY.

CANTONMENT BRADY,
SAULT STE. MARIE, MICH. Ter.,

Sunday, Feb. 1, 1824.

MY DEAR AUNT:

When I left home if I mistake not I pledged myself to give you an account of my journey to this or whatsoever place fate might direct me. From memory, therefore (as I keep no journal), I shall barely say enough to comply with my promise. On Friday, the 25th of July, 1823, under the guidance of my brother John I took my departure for N. Haven. The morning of this day, which was alternately pleasant and disagreeable, I formed a just representation of the feelings of the inhabitants of W——y towards me. In many countinances regret at parting, with wishes for my welfare were evidently depicted, whilst in others envy was shown, and in others a desire that some misfortune might lower my head (which they imagined I carried rather too high), discovered itself. The frowns and smiles of the morning were succeeded by weather in the afternoon which was unpleasant in the extreme. It rained incessantly, nevertheless at Cheshire I called on Mrs. Brandin, and saw George, who I am very sorry to say has failed very much, and Parson Wood, and Mr. Linsley in Hamden. We arrived at New Haven late in the evening and took our lodgings at Morse's Hotel, where we found Holmes. I retired to my room sick, having a high fever. On the morrow I called on some of my friends, took a ride out of the city with friends Holmes, Hayden, Nichols, and some students, among the number was a son of the Hon. Noah Webster, returned much refreshed, and took a packet in the evening for New York, where I arrived after a very pleasant voyage on Monday morning. I reported to Col. McCrea agreeably to my orders, in company with friend Holmes, from whom we received orders to join a detachment of recruits for the 5th infantry (Hank Waters at St. Peters on the Mississippi), which had sailed from there the day before under the command of Capt. Plimpton. Saw many friends during this and the following day, on the afternoon of which we took a voyage in the steamboat for West Point, arrived there the same night. Being detained by my tailor I spent three days very happily at the Point with my late commander, and left the Point for Albany on Friday, the 1st of August, arrived the next day about noon and remained four hours, when I took a seat in the stage for Utica and arrived at Schenectady the same evening, started very early the next morning and arrived at Utica (Sunday, August 3rd). Our route lay through a delightful country. My fellow passengers were very intelligent; Col. Aaron Burr was of the number. Utica is a very lively, pleasant, and thriving town. At this place I joined my detachment and took the canal, and left it at Rochester on the Sunday following, August 10th. Rochester is a very flourishing village, situated on the Genessee river at the point where the canal crosses it. Left Rochester on the 10th in the steamboat for Lewiston, arrived on the 12th, and marched to Niagara Falls the same day, and remained at the Falls four days for the purpose of refreshing ourselves, and viewing the wonderful, sublime, and beautiful scenery. Marched from the Falls to Buffalo on Sunday the 17th, embarked in the steamboat Superior on the following morning for Mackinaw, where we arrived on the 24th. Our voyage up the Lakes was very pleasant. We exchanged passengers at Erie, Painesville, Cleveland, and Sandusky, Ohio. At this place I went on shore and trod the soil of the State of Ohio. The scenery between Sandusky and Detroit is truly picturesque. Detroit has been long settled, and appears now to be very thriving. I had letters which I had a good opportunity of delivering at this place, as we stopped one night for the purpose of taking on wood and procuring supplies, etc. From Mackinaw, having remained three days there in company with Maj. Cutler, the commander of this post, and his family and Lieut. Day, I took my departure for this place in a boat. We were two and one-half days on our route. At night we encamped on shore. My love to all.

Very affectionately yours, J. J. B. KINGSBURY.

MY DEAR BROTHER CHARLES:

This post is situated on the right bank of the St. Mary's river, at the foot of the falls of the same, 25 miles from Lake Huron, and 10 from Superior, in latitude 40 degrees and 30'. The mercury in the Thermometer has stood this winter as low as 40 degrees below Zero. It is common for it to stand as low as 30 degrees, but still I have suffered as little with the cold as in any other in my life. So much is man a creature of habit. Lt. West (?) of this command explored the country between this post and Mackinaw in the months of Nov. and Dec. last, and found it very swampy. He succeeded, however, in marking out a road which has been traveled a number of times this winter, and found it very advantageous, as it shortens the distance about one-half. The distance is about 59 miles. The inhabitants are, with a few exceptions, a despicable race, and a motley crew of Canadians and Indians.

Saunders, the Probate Judge, whose duty it was to preëmpt townsites when called upon to do so, refused for some reason or other to preëmpt the townsite of Burlington, when requested to by the town company. In February of that year Mr. Kingsbury, in company with Col. O. E. Learnard of Lawrence, and Charles Pearsall, drove to Mr. Saunders' home on Long Creek, received Mr. Saunders' written resignation, and then drove to Lecompton, the State capital, and presented the resignation to Governor Medary, who accepted it. On March 1 following Mr. Kingsbury received his commission as Probate Judge, and on the next day preëmpted the present site of the City of Burlington. He made the best Probate Judge the County has ever had, and his records were models in their day. He was two years Representative of Coffey County in the Kansas legislature, and two years County Clerk. He was an authority on early Coffey County history, and had a remarkable memory for names and dates, and wrote the history of Coffee County for the early atlases. He was a brilliant writer, and some of his little poems written for numerous occasions were catchy and witty. The campaign songs he wrote in 1892 attracted attention and were sung in all parts of the State. He joined the Masons before coming to Burlington, and then joined the local lodge. He was a member of the Church of the Ascension, although in recent years he has been a believer in Christian Science." — Burlington, Kansas Independent.
